British Ship Reported Safe After SOS Arms Embargo To Meet Test This Afternoon

COAST GUARD ENDS SEARCH FOR VESSEL

Canadian Radio Station Hears Message; Believe Ship Escaped Nazi Sub.

SAY CITY OF FLINT SAFE

Germans Cite International Law as Explanation for Taking U. S. Boat.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The coast guard received word today that the British freighter Coulmore was safe.

The word was received by the coast guard cutter Bibb from a Canadian radio station at Campdown at 2:30 a. m. (Mansfield time). The station said it had heard directly from the Coulmore that she was safe.

The search for the vessel was suspended.
The Bibb was the leader of a squadron of coast guard and navy vessels scouring the Atlantic for the freighter about 680 miles east of New York after the interception early yesterday morning of a distress signal which indicated the freighter might have been attacked by a submarine.

The position given by the Coulmore at that time indicated it was just inside the neutrality safety belt around the American coast at the recent Pan American neutrality meeting in Panama.

The Bibb relayed the Campdown information to Washington at about 9:30 a. m., saying that the radio information "justified closing the search."
The Bibb also heard from Campdown that, for some unexplained reason, the Coulmore appeared able to send messages to Campdown, but could not receive messages from Canada.

CITE INTERNATIONAL LAW
BERLIN—(AP)—International law was cited by German authorities today as justification for action of the Nazi prize crew in bringing the captured American freighter City of Flint through Norwegian territorial waters to a German port.

The route being followed, it was said, "safeguards the vessel from British attack."

BRINGS SNOW

Real Winter Hits Midwest and Northern Ohio Cities.

The first real winter weather hit Ohio and other midwestern states today, bringing snow and the lowest temperature of the season to a number of points.

With a low of 28 degrees this morning, Mansfield escaped the brunt of the fall "cold wave" which dropped the mercury to eight degrees above zero in Nebraska and Iowa and covered Chicago and northern Ohio cities with snow. Cleveland reported nearly a half inch of snow while Chicago had its first snowstorm.

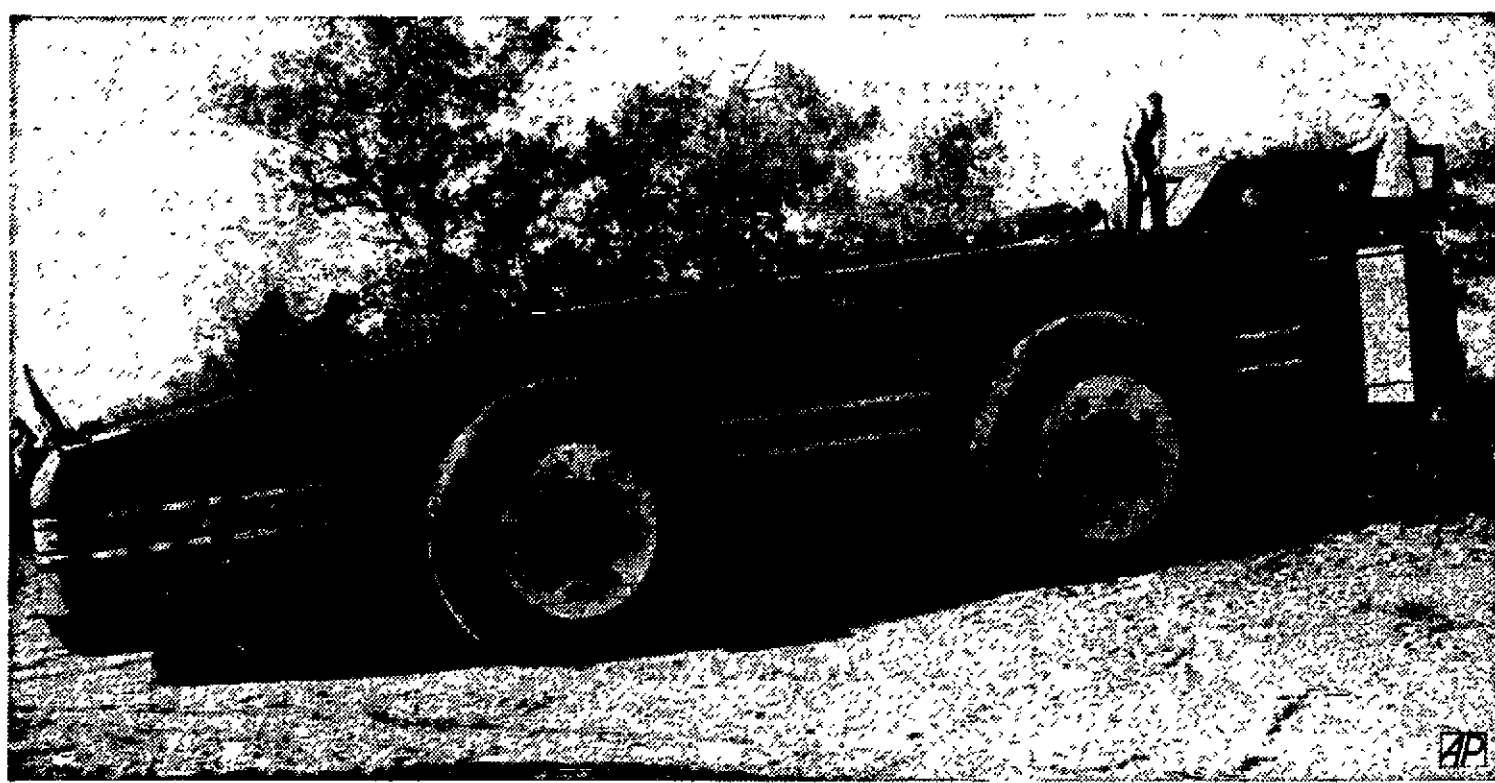

Only a few flakes of snow fell last night in Mansfield but a heavy blanket of the city during the night.

The weatherman said it will be generally fair with continued cold tonight and Friday. Temperatures are expected to reach the lowest marks of the season in Ohio tonight.

When a Snow Cruiser Comes to Town

It's even bigger than it looks, that snow cruiser of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's, which passed through Mansfield early this morning on its way to Boston for shipment to the Antarctic. This picture gives you an idea of the over-all size of the thing.

Word spread fast that the cruiser was halted for the night on Route 30N a mile east of Bucyrus last night, and a crowd of thousands gathered in no time to get a look at the queer looking contraption. This picture shows just a few of the throng of curious.

The driver's compartment is a maze of gadgets and levers—and it's way up in the air. News-Journal Reporter Robert E. Rogers tries to figure out what they're all for.

CITY SLEEPS AS CRUISER PASSES

'Ice Buggy' Goes Through in Early Hours; Stops for Hour in Ashland.

After awaiting with eagerness for the past several days for a look at the giant Antarctic snow cruiser, most of Mansfield slept this morning when the giant "ice buggy" lumbered down West Fourth street and passed through the city on its way to Boston.

After a rest stop of eight hours near Bucyrus last night, the cruiser resumed its plodding but eventful journey eastward at 3 a. m. today.

The 55-foot cruiser, which weighs 37½ tons, passed through Mansfield at 6 a. m., arriving at Ashland two hours later.

With an escort of state highway patrolmen, the huge craft entered the city at 6:06 a. m. and at 6:35 a. m. was ambled over route 42 at about 28 miles an hour. Few persons saw it.

At Ashland the cruiser stopped for nearly an hour while the crew breakfasted.

Downtown Ashland was jammed and traffic was at a standstill for more than an hour. Schools were dismissed to permit pupils to view the vehicle.

It left Ashland over U. S. route 250 and detoured six and a half miles back to U. S. route 42 in order to avoid several narrow bridges just east of the city.

The goal of the giant machine's crew for tonight is Akron. There was a chance that it might run into snow in northern Ohio, where the temperature dropped to 20 degrees this morning.

Twice yesterday the snow cruiser was delayed by mechanical difficulties. There was a two-hour stop at Beaver Dam to repair an oil line. It was delayed again for several hours at Upper Sandusky while parts (Continued on Page 22, Col. 2)

STATE FAIR DATES SET
COLUMBUS—(AP)—Win Kinman, manager of the Ohio State fair, announced today the 1940 fair will be held Aug. 24 to Aug. 30, inclusive.

How'd you like to buy tires for Byrd's snow cruiser. This unusual picture gives you an idea of the size of the wheels of the "ice buggy" which Admiral Byrd plans to use in his exploration work in Antarctica—that is, if the cruiser gets to Boston in time to make the boat.

CLUB BURNS

$20,000 Blaze Destroys Canton Golf Course Building.

CANTON—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the clubhouse of the Public Highland golf course, four miles east of Canton.

Mrs. Hazel Borden, owner and occupant of the clubhouse, estimated loss at $20,000. She said she found the house in flames when she returned home early today.

Cruiser Looks Like Gigantic Monster, Sprawled On Highway

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

It had all the appearances of a mastodontic monster poised for a kill, its huge eyes peering into the darkness as it sprawled on its enormous belly.

It seemed like something from a fantastic dream—perhaps a creation by H. G. Wells—as it rested on the highway near Bucyrus last night.

What seemed more impossible was the fact that the gigantic man-made machine, which dwarfed the thousands of persons that milled around it, had journeyed nearly 500 miles under its own power.

FINNS ARRIVE IN MOSCOW TO REPLY TO REDS

Delegation Expected to Make Concessions to Soviets on Territorial Demands.

READY TO SIGN, BELIEF

Conferences Due to Resume in Moscow Today Leading to Final Settlement.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—A Finnish mission arrived today with a written reply to Russian territorial demands and diplomats here believed the Finns were ready to capitulate.

V. M. Molotov, the Soviet premier and foreign minister, was believed to have spoken his final word Tuesday night in announcing that Russia wanted to lease Finnish territory near the entrance to the gulf of Finland for a naval base and wanted the Finnish frontier pushed back away from Leningrad on the Karelian isthmus.

It was believed, therefore, that unless the Finns were willing to risk armed invasion, they would sign an agreement within a few days.

The delegation of five, headed by J. K. Paasikivi, was met at the railway station by a representative of the Soviet foreign office and the ministers of three Scandinavian countries allied with Finland in the Nordic neutrality bloc, who are watching developments. It was believed that the first talk would be held this afternoon.

Ready to Sign, Belief.

The attitude here was that the Finns presumably had come authorized to conclude a pact with Russia. The fact that they had been here twice before to discuss Russia's demands, and had gone home the last time to convey the demands in writing to the Finnish cabinet, was taken to mean that Finland had reached her decision.

Molotov had made it clear that Russia had gone the limit in making concessions by abandoning the proposal that Finland enter a military pact with Russia, and by announcing that Russia had no objection to the fortifying of the Aaland islands, between Finland and Sweden.

Finland had announced that it would fight before signing any military alliance with Russia, because that would impair its neutrality agreement with Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Molotov had warned that "we do not think Finland will seek a pretext to thwart the proposed agreement. . . . We are certain Finnish leaders properly understand the importance of consolidating friendly relations with the Soviet Union."

GETS LIFE TERM

Farmhand Who Killed Flying Instructor Pleads Guilty.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(AP)—The eccentric flying career of a Hoosier farmhand who had a passion to be an aviator ended in a forced landing here today as Ernest (Larry) Pletch began a life term in the state prison.

In a surprise move at Macon, Mo., yesterday, Pletch, 29, pleaded guilty to slaying Flying Instructor Carl Bivens one mile above Macon county and was given a life sentence by Circuit Judge Harry J. Libby.

Earlier, Pletch had waived preliminary hearing and promised Judge Libby never to apply for a pardon or parole. The judge said the sentence was in accordance with the wish of Bivens' widow.

What seemed more impossible was the fact that the gigantic man-made machine, which dwarfed the thousands of persons that milled around it, had journeyed nearly 500 miles under its own power.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—William Page of Duluth, Minn., member of the crew of the freighter Andrew Upson, a Buckeye Steamship Co. vessel, was killed today at a Cleveland dock when a steel cable snapped. Page was struck by the cable and a dock stanchion which it dislodged.

Later he had to quit hunting when he snatched his third bird from a hedge fence. There's the limit.

Representatives To Accept Or Reject Senate Amended Bill; Expect End Of Debate In Time To Bring Adjournment Saturday.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The house votes today on repealing the arms embargo. The question—whether to instruct house conferees to seek retention of the ban on arms exports—will be one of the last to be considered by the special session, called by President Roosevelt to revise the neutrality laws.

Administration house leaders, seeking final action on the bill before Saturday night, will move this afternoon to end debate and to begin voting on pending amendments or "instructions" to conferees.

If that schedule is followed, the vote on the arms embargo should come about 4 p. m. (Mansfield time). The bill then will be sent to conference with the senate tonight, and preparations made for sine die adjournment of congress Saturday. Six weeks ago today—Sept. 21—congress assembled in extraordinary session to hear Roosevelt's appeal for repeal of the existing arms embargo and enactment of a "cash-and-carry" plan. Since then the senate has debated the issues at length and amended a house-approved bill to conform to the administration's plan.

Actually, the house will be acting today on the amended version of a joint resolution it passed at the regular session. That resolution retained a modified arms embargo despite strenuous administration opposition.

The controversy has not changed since last summer, the major question being: whether this nation should continue an embargo on arms to belligerents or should sell arms to all countries on a "come and get it" basis.

Vote To Be Close.

The house vote on embargo repeal will be close. Administration leaders claim a minimum 20-vote margin. Isolationists contend they still have a fighting chance of keeping the ban on arms export in the law. Leaders of both sides have planned their major attacks for today.

Final speaker for the administration—and for repeal of the embargo—will be Speaker William B. Bankhead. Only on rare and important occasions does Bankhead leave the speaker's rostrum to plead from the well of the house for or against pending legislation.

On this issue, party lines have been smashed. Among the other speakers scheduled to speak for embargo repeal are Majority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), an influential member of the Republican party, Rep. James W. Wadsworth of New York, and Rep. Luther A. Johnson (D., Tex.).

Rep. Hamilton Fish (R., N. Y.), leader of the opposition, sought early today to line up an equally imposing list of speakers for retention of the embargo.

10,000 Folders To Tell City of Need Of Recreation Levy

More than 10,000 folders telling of the need of the proposed two-tenths of a mill recreation levy that comes before Mansfield voters next Tuesday will be distributed in Mansfield Saturday by Boy Scouts.

The folders were prepared by the playground and youth activities committee of McVey post of the American Legion.

The Legion is sponsoring a year-round recreational program which would be financed by the funds raised by the levy. The plan provides for additional equipment for parks and playgrounds; year-round basketball, ice skating and winter sports, and supervision of the summer playgrounds, with a full-time recreational director.

Another phase of it will be a community recreation program which provides for dramatics, concerts, training classes and tournaments.

"The Legion is interested in the levy because it believes that a year-round recreational program will aid in reducing juvenile delinquency," Walter L. Brockley, chairman of the Legion committee said.

The proposed levy would increase taxes 20 cents for each thousand dollars of real estate valuation. This is an increase of one-tenth of a mill over the first playground levy which was approved by voters in 1929 for a period of five years.

—Advice—
Will Writing Hold Them Together?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Have the automobile, the telephone, the telegraph, the radio so taken possession of us that a hand-written letter now seems too slow a way of making love? Or is it true that there is no magic in the world like that of a simple sheet of paper on which a true lover has written to his lover?

"Writing love letters is too slow for me," a young man writes, "I give her a buzz on the long distance telephone a couple of times a week and I send her a wire. We spend every weekend together. Of course, if there's anything important to write about, like the wallpaper she's picking out for our bungalow, I write her a letter, but otherwise I leave it to the phone and the telegraph."

This morning's mail brings a letter from a girl who asks if love can survive on letters. Or is the whole sentiment of pouring out one's heart a thoroughly outgrown idea of a bygone day? And were not these love-letters as cherished as classics, a delusion even in the age which produced them?

The war in Europe has sent this young college girl's fiance to Buenos Aires at almost twice the salary he was getting in the United States. He is 27 years of age, she is 24. Circumstances made it impossible for them to be married before he leaves for his new post.

He will not return for a year and she is wondering if writing will be a strong enough bond to hold them together. They have promised to write several times a week. She will study both Spanish and Portuguese in the meantime, so she will be better prepared to take up life in South America.

Her fiance hasn't the shadow of a doubt that true love will run smoothly in their case, and that they will be married when he returns a year from Thanksgiving day. The girl hopes that all this may be true. But she is unhappy over the separation.

Supposing the old-fashioned love letter that was loved to see them through is not a strong enough bond in their case—won't it be just as well that these young people make the discovery that they were not really meant for each other after all? If they really are in love, their loneliness and deep desire to share with each other their separate lives will bring from them something that is stirring, beautiful and real.

The greatest joy of each will be the arrival of those documents containing every variety of the statement "I love you." And the greatest happiness both can have will be the writing of those love journals, which are always more or less boiled down to that same delicious piece of news—I love you.

Here's a grand new pastry swirl dessert for fall: Spread a half-inch sheet of rich biscuit dough with thick, spiced apple sauce. Roll it quickly and cut into half-inch slices. Fit the slices into a buttered muffin pan, sprinkle them lightly with brown sugar mixed with nuts and butter and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm with lemon, custard or cream hard sauce.

"What does she want?" Dicky demanded tensely when I had spoken Lillian's name and had listened to what she had to tell me.

"She wants me to come down to the apartment," I said finally. "When?" he asked quickly. "Right away, I gather," I returned.

He crossed to my side, and with a laughing, "Excuse me, please!" took the telephone from me and put it to his own mouth and ear.

"Lo Lil!" he said easily. "What's the idea of tearing two fond hearts apart like this? Can't you wait a few hours? I'm going out myself about five o'clock—a business engagement I can't duck. Why can't she wait until then?"

He waited, frowning, until she had finished whatever rejoinder she was making. Then he spoke resignedly.

"Well! I suppose I'll have to be grateful for about an eighth of a loaf instead of a whole one," he said. "But I won't kick, and I'll see that she starts promptly at the end of an hour. Bye, old dear. The same to you and many of them."

He hung up the receiver and turned to me. "We've got an hour," he said, the gaily gone from his manner.

Tempt Children's Appetites

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Backward young appetites are often a family problem, and a legitimate ruse is to tempt them with a dessert which contains plenty of nourishment.

Pear Tapioca is made by combining four tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon ginger and two cups canned pear juice and water in saucepan, mixed well. Bring mixture quickly to a full boil over direct heat, stirring constantly. Remove from fire (mixture will be thin; do not over cook). Add six halves canned pears, cut in halves; four maraschino cherries, cut in eighths; one-fourth cup maraschino cherry juice and two tablespoons lemon juice. Cool, stirring occasionally—mixture thickens as it cools. Chill. Serve with cream if desired. Serves eight.

Prune Sponge Pudding.

Prune Sponge Pudding is another healthful and flavorsome dessert. Combine four tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, three tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-third cups prune juice and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly-boiling water and cook seven minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add one tablespoon butter, one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons grated orange rind, three tablespoons orange juice and one cup finely-cut, cooked prunes. Cool slightly while beating the whites of three eggs stiff and the yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in 350° F. oven 50 to 60 minutes or until firm. Serves six.

Baked Pear Tapioca Pudding is made with one-half cup tapioca, three cups boiling water, one-third teaspoon salt, two tablespoons lemon juice, three fresh pears, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup water and one cup marshmallows. Cook tapioca, salt and boiling water over hot water until tapioca is clear. Peel the pears and cut in quarters; add sugar and one-fourth cup water; cover and simmer five minutes. Combine with tapioca and lemon juice. Pour in buttered baking dish, cover with marshmallows and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serves eight.

most crushing them, then folded me closely in his arms.

"My own girl!" he said huskily. "I'm going to buckle that on like shining armor when I go out from here. I don't deserve to wear it but I know, nevertheless, that it is going to protect me."

YAKIMA, Wash.—(U.P.)—A doe deer raised by the A. H. Kellogg family on their ranch near Nile is so tame it enters the Kellogg house.
The deer, named Babe, was found three years ago by Kellogg's children when it was a fawn. It apparently had been abandoned by its mother and was near starvation. The children took it home and nursed it with cow milk until it became strong again.
When it became older the Kelloggs turned it loose in the hills. But although it ranges miles into the timber, the deer usually appears at the ranch house in the evening at milking time, seeking some fresh milk.

EVEN 'BEST COOKS' ARE INVITED TO COOKING SCHOOL NEXT WEEK
If you are the "best cook in town" in the opinion of your family and friends, you are especially invited to The News-Journal's cooking school, "The Pageant of Foods," which opens a four-day session at the Ohio theater next Tuesday morning.
Because if you are an expert cook, if you know good foods and are on the alert for new ideas in preparing and serving them, you are certain to be both interested and appreciative of the school.
And again, if you are the "best cook in town," you undoubtedly love new recipes and Miss Ruth Chambers, noted food expert who will be in charge of the school, has an even 100 of them to offer to Mansfield housewives next week.
These are printed in a set of four booklets, one of which will be given out at each session. These receipts, incidentally, have been collected from good cooks in all sections of the country and foreign lands. They are diversified in range with recipes for special company occasions, for children's lunches and for reducing diets.
If you are a good cook, you probably know about the new methods of meat cookery, for you keep abreast of the times in everything which concerns your task as a homemaker. But have you actually seen these new ways demonstrated, and do you know just how the results are achieved?

Do you know how to place a roast in the oven so that basting is unnecessary? Do you know how to select economy cuts of meat and to prepare them so that they are among the tenderest, most delicious of dishes?
Miss Chambers, who is an expert in cooking and a connoisseur of fine foods, is always interested in the problems and the achievements of the women who come to her cooking school. If you have a favorite recipe which might interest other women, Miss Chambers will be glad to know about it. Perhaps there is a special meat dish, a stuffing or dressing, a pie or cake or coffee cake, the recipe for which has been handed down in your family. Bring it to the cooking school. Several recipes so received during the last year by Miss Chambers are printed in the recipe booklets.

Princeton Tackle May Lose Limb.

PRINCETON, N. J.—(AP)—Don Herring, stalwart tackle of the Princeton university football team, lay on a hospital bed today, unaware surgeons were considering amputating his left leg. Don, six feet four and 237 pounds of brawn, was injured on the first play of the Brown game last week.

IN THE RING

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

ALTHOUGH it must be admitted that it was a bad day last Saturday, the Tigers' game with Akron Kenmore only brought something like $200 into the treasury. Counting up all of the expenses, including the $150 guaranteed Kenmore, the Tigers lost money on the venture. Here is a good argument for champions of night football. Al Fendrick, Madison coach, witnessed the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game last week, and seldom saw the ball. Al was checking up on line play. . . . to see what makes those two teams click. . . . The Madison mentor also questioned the smartness of the Irish. . . . In the last few minutes of the 7 to 6 game, the Irish threw a "flat" pass on Carnegie's 20. . . . Had it been gobbled up by a Tech man, the Pittsburgh school might have won on the interception, Al declared. . . . This unnecessary throw reminded Al of the time Gallon won a ball game from Madison in the fading seconds on a similar stunt. . . . Mike Hallabrin is getting ready to take his place on a side-line bench for Ohio State's tussle with Indiana, Saturday. . . . He'll wear his son's number, which is 12, for Dad's Day.

In handing out bouquets to the crack Bellville grid club, they tell us not to forget Co-Capt. Bill Martin, who has been playing a lot of end for Coach Royd Hodge's undefeated club.

Labels Frish Squad Worst In Five Years.

FRITZ MACKEY, who handles the Ohio State freshmen, claims this year's crop of first year men is the poorest to hit the Columbus school in five years. . . . The reason Bill Kern is said to be planning to leave Carnegie Tech is because the school's alumni plan of obtaining material has failed to work. . . . If you're planning to see the Cleveland Rams in action in Cleveland, Sunday, you'll get a peek at Marshall Goldberg, who plays with the Chicago Cardinals. . . . Tom Harmon, Michigan's sensational back, has to score only 28 more points to beat the Big Ten record of 72 established by Gordon Locke of Iowa in 1922.

DRAKE GOES AFTER PRO LEAGUE'S SCORING MARK

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Cleveland's Johnny Drake will go after the National Football league's touchdown record here Sunday when the Rams tangle with the Chicago Cardinals. . . . The former Purdue fullback tops league scorers with eight touchdowns and needs only one more to tie the mark held by Don Hutson, Green Bay end.

Six Ohioans Return With Indiana Eleven

Middletown and Campbell Boys Sparkplugs of Indiana Offensive Maneuvers.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—It will be Buckeye brother against brother Saturday when one of the most bitter "civil wars" in Big Ten football flares between Ohio State and Indiana in Ohio stadium. Ever since the advent of the ambitious Bo McMillin at Indiana, there have been annual accusations from Ohio that the Hoosiers have been poaching unduly in Buckeye high school football preserves. The Indiana roster offers proof that the Hoosiers have obtained a neat limit of Ohio-trained gridders whatever the cause and justice of the fact.

Tony Reaches End of Trail, Kayoed By Foe

Canzoneri Floored Twice by Clark in Third Round; Referee Stops Fight.

By BILL WHITE

NEW YORK —(AP)—Broadway saw one of its favorite sons reach the end of the road in Madison Square Garden last night—and it wasn't a pretty sight.

Old and ring-wise Tony Canzoneri, veteran of 166 stirring battles, was belted into oblivion by the stinging left hand of a young Brooklyn kid, placid Al Davis, in the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder in the same arena where his fight with Al Singer set an attendance record back in 1928, the same ring where he lost the featherweight title to Andre Routs, the same ring where he won the lightweight title from Singer in 1930.

Afterwards the Canzoneri dressing room was like a tomb—in sharp contrast to the stuffy quarters where Davis changed into street togs.

His right eye was badly damaged from the blows of Davis, the smiling slugger.

A momentary roar from the crowd of 12,750 greeted the end of the Canzoneri saga, and then they filed out almost as though they were passing Tony's bier, shocked and stunned that the end had come so quickly to their idol.

Early in the third round, Davis knocked Tony wobbly with a thunderous left hand. Tony plopped to the floor, but managed to get up at the count of three. The husky Davis hurtled across the ring and blasted him again with another flurry and floored him again with a numbing left.

He struggled up at six, but Referee Arthur Donovan, waving the eager Davis away, put his arm around Tony, and led him to his corner.

The fight ended officially at 2:13 of the third round, and drew a gate of $30,739.09, of which Davis and Tony will take about $8,500 apiece.

Both are juniors. Hursh has become the most feared pass heater in the conference while Toffi, injured in his first game last fall against Ohio and laid up thereafter, has gained 208 yards from scrimmage in 60 tries this fall. Playing fullback, Toffi usually smacks the line when an extra yard or two is needed for first down and he usually makes it.

Other Ohio boys on the Indiana squad are Harold Zimmer, fleet halfback from Springfield; Harry Brooks, a fast-developing sophomore back from Dayton; Ken Smith, another sophomore back from Piqua, and John Maycox, a junior guard from Cincinnati.

The presence of these native Buckeyes in Indiana uniform undoubtedly will add to the spirited natural gridiron rivalry between the two neighboring states.

McMillin gets a special enjoyment in pointing for the Ohio eleven coached by Francis Schmidt. Both coaches took over their first Big Ten teams in 1934. McMillin has chalked up only one victory over Ohio in the five games but that 10 to 0 upset in 1937 knocked Ohio out of the conference title.

Schmidt won 33 to 0 in 1934; 28 to 0 in 1935; 7 to 0 in 1936, and 6 to 0 last year. Incidentally, last year's close struggle was a clash of highly-keyed sophomore squads in an opening game and the Indiana yearlings never did get going the rest of the season.

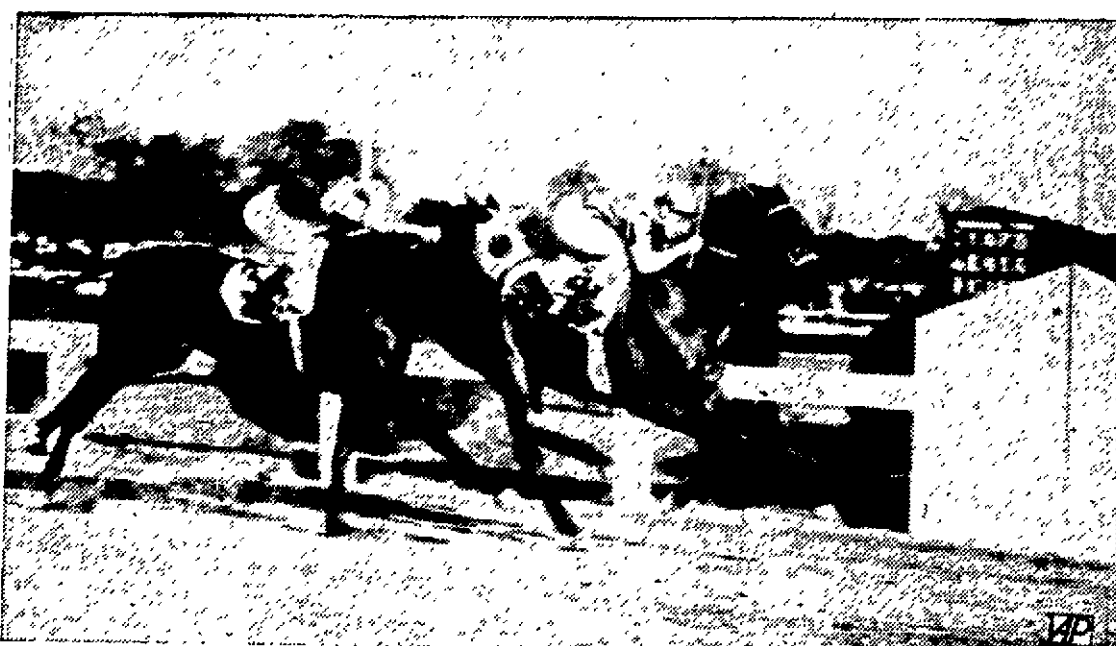

This Saturday is another year and McMillin has had two weeks to prepare for the Bucks. Indiana had an open date last week while McMillin scouted Ohio's hard defeat by Cornell.

Both squads expect to be in good physical shape for the game. Ohio's ailing tackles have recovered rapidly and Jim Daniell and Jim Piccinini, sophomore tackles, who did not get in against Cornell because of injuries, will be ready.

Indiana leaves Bloomington tonight and will arrive in Columbus tomorrow morning.

Challedon Wins 'Horse of Year' Title at Pimlico

Challedon, the Maryland bred horse owned by W. L. Brann, earned ranking as "horse of the year" in the Pimlico Special at Baltimore yesterday. Challedon is shown here crossing the finish line half a length ahead of Kayak II. Third, by 18 lengths, was Cravat. The purse was $10,000, winner take all.

Challedon, Winner of Pimlico Special, Given Chance Beating Sun Beau's Earning Record

By SID FEDER

BALTIMORE —(AP)—Challedon, champion of all racing for 1939, went on vacation today before getting back on the glory road which stands a good chance of leading him to Sun Beau's all-time high money-winning record of $376,744.

William L. Brann's colt is still nearly $125,000 short of Sun Beau's "bank account," but this bay son of Challenger II, is only three years old—and from the way he whipped Kayak II and Cravat in Alfred G. Vanderbilt's annual "dream race," the Pimlico Special, yesterday, there's no indication he's going to stop hitting the jackpot soon.

His half-length victory over

Kayak II in the $10,000 winner-take-all special at a mile and three-sixteenths, with Cravat a poor third, boosted his earnings after two years of racing to $252,235, and earned for him a rest, which Owner Brann and Trainer Lou Schaefer are going to give him now. Although plans are still indefinite, the chances are "Big Pete" won't have any more work to do this year.

If he does any winter work after 1940 comes in, the probability is it will be in Florida. There are plenty of juicy pots at Hialeah and Tropical, headed by the $50,000 Widener cup. Brann, who received a handsome gold cup as well as the $10,000 from the special, has said Challedon will be nominated for both the Widener and the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, just on the chance he may take his likeable big bay to California.

Since Kayak II and Cravat, with Challedon, are the outstanding horses in training right now, and since Challenger's boy whipped both the others with a gallant stretch drive on a track not yet completely dry from three days of rain, his chances of picking up that $125,000 aren't too tough as long as he remains sound.

Of course, Seabiscuit, winner of more than $300,000, may yet come back to the wars, but at present his chances are remote.

Challedon had only one bad moment against the South American bred Kayak II, owned by Charles S. Howard, California automobile distributor. That came as the three-horse field rounded the stretch turn and Kayak made his move. As they straightened out, the California contender poked his way to the front. But Jockey Eddie Arcazo went to the bat there, and back came Big Pete.

Cravat, Townsend B. Martin's Kentucky-bred hope, was ten lengths back. Challedon covered the distance in 1:59 and paid $2.90 for $2 in the straight betting.

Fox Hound Honors Won By Red Roush

LOGAN —(AP)—The best young fox hound in Ohio is Red Roush, owned by J. B. Allison of Oak Hill and Fred Meyers of Rio Grande. The pup won his award by defeating 94 other dogs in the futurity field championship of the Ohio Fox Hunters' association meeting here yesterday. Shamrock, owned by Ben Dial of Wellston, O., was second, and Red, from the Mary Ann kennels at Wellston, was third.

CANT SCORE ON VOLKS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. —(CP)—Not only can Tennessee lick other current college football teams, but it's doubtful whether any other squad can score on them. That's the reported opinion of Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland, former Pittsburgh coach—and he ought to know his football.

Renew Rivalry Started In 1900

The oldest rivalry on the Mansfield high school football schedule will be renewed at Stadium field at 2:30 p. m. Saturday when the Tigers engage Ashland.

The Midiron representatives of Mansfield and Ashland have tangled almost annually since 1900 when the two schools opened their series.

Two games were played in 1900 with the Tigers winning by scores of 18 to 0 and 18 to 6, and Mansfield holds a decided edge in victories, although the A's have seldom been pushovers.

The last victory for an Ashland team over Mansfield was registered in 1925 when the A's toppled the Tigers, 14 to 6. Ashland has tied the Tigers twice since then, however.

Last year the Tigers rolled to a 44 to 0 triumph over the A's in the final game of the season.

With a lineup including a number of veterans, Ashland is expected to offer the Tigers an interesting afternoon Saturday.

Among the outstanding members of the Ashland club are Jim Puglisi, Bob Howell and Bob Henson, backs, and Bob Glass and Bill Cothren, linemen.

GEORGIE PACE TO GET TITLE AWARD TONIGHT

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Little Georgie Pace, dusky Cleveland fighter, tonight will officially become bantamweight champion of the world.

Tris Speaker, chairman of the Cleveland Boxing commission and representing the NBA, will present the title certification. Johnny Kilbane, Pace's first tutor and featherweight champion from 1912 to 1923, will attend the ceremonies. Pace was awarded the title when Sixto Escobar, of Puerto Rico, abdicated to campaign in the 126-pound class.

NEWARK, N. J.—George Becker, 200, California, threw Bull Marino, 171, New York, 21 15.

Favored Over Madison Friday

Fendrick Believes His Team Has Chance If It Plays Four Quarters of Football.

MADISON high school football players will be called upon to protect a remarkable record on their field Friday night when they engage the undefeated Bellville Bluejays.

Coach Al Fendrick's Rams have not been defeated by Bellville since 1930, the records disclose. Fendrick admitted today that prospects for a victory are more remote this year than any time since 1930, but intimated that the Rams are mentally and physically pitched for the encounter.

Outside of protecting the record, Madison has everything to gain. Bellville, on the other hand, has everything to lose. The Bluejay's record of seven straight victories is one of the most pretentious in the state this season.

Fendrick realizes that the Rams will have their hands full, and Bellville is heavily favored to triumph, but the Madison mentor is not over pessimistic.

"If my players play four quarters of football we might win," Fendrick-declared. "If they don't, they'll lose."

This is something that the Rams have not done so far this year, he pointed out.

"In the Wooster game, we played only the second half," Fendrick said. "We didn't show anything in the New London game, played a good first half against Crestline and then folded and the fourth period was the only quarter we played against Orrville."

"We had a good second half against Upper Sandusky and the same against Norwalk St. Paul's."

"Mark my word," Fendrick said, "we'll be tough if the boys don't have a let-down."

Meanwhile, Coach Royd Hodge is saying little as he is going about his duties of preparing the Bluejays for what he considers the No. 1 game of the year.

Hodge is less optimistic than the team's followers, who can't see anything but a Bellville victory, but the Bluejays' pilot stated that his club is "in fine shape."

Friday night will mark the 13th time that Fendrick has sent a

Madison team against Bellville. His record to date consists of 10 victories and two defeats.

A 7 to 6 defeat was administered by Bellville in 1929, Fendrick's first year at Madison, and a 42 to 0 whipping was handed the Rams in 1930. Since then the Rams have won every game, taking last year's meeting, 13 to 6.

MAX SCHMELING 'HOPES' ANOTHER GO WITH LOUIS

ROME —(AP)—Max Schmeling, arriving here for a short visit, said today he still hoped for a return bout with Heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis. "I intend to continue fighting—and how!" Schmeling declared.

Rome newspapers said Schmeling's visit might involve negotiations for a motion picture contract.

HUNTERS SHINE UP 'IRONS' FOR BANNER SEASON

Annual Trek for Rabbits to Begin Next Wednesday; Game Plentiful.

Anticipating the best hunting season in years, Mansfield hunters were shining up their firearms today and getting ready to trek into the fields with nearly a half-million other Ohio sportsmen next Wednesday noon.

Hunters will seek their quarry this fall in a new staggered hunting season set up by the Ohio Conservation commission.

Opening a week early—on Nov. 8—the season will permit rabbit hunting in the afternoons on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays from Nov. 8 to Nov. 30 and daily except Sundays during all of December. The December hunting periods will be from 7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

The same open season will be observed for pheasant and Hungarian partridge hunting in Ohio.

Conservationists predict excellent rabbit and pheasant hunting this fall as the rewards of the state's scientific game management which was designed to build up the game supply.

New Season 'Break' for All.
Conservation officials believe the staggered season is a good break for all parties concerned—the city-resident hunters, the farmers who own most of the hunting areas and the game itself.

The city guys will have three week-ends to get away from job routines instead of only two as in past seasons; the farmers will have the forepart of the week to get field work done without being trampled or shot by hunters while rabbits and pheasants will enjoy "breathing spells" for nourishment and recuperation between harrows.

While rabbits are generally plentiful, the best pheasant hunting will be in the northwestern counties, according to the state survey. Logan county in western Ohio also reports "excellent" pheasant conditions along with Allen, Hardin, Henry, Huron, Marion, Van Wert and Wyandot.

Praising the growing co-operation of hunters in observing bag limits, State Commissioner, Don Waters said there will be no "road blockades" of hunters' automobiles this fall.

The commission will be "very vigilant" in enforcement, however, and Waters said the methods would be kept "secret."

Thirty-eight special game protectors have been added to the regular force of 100 for November and December supplemented by many volunteer protectors specially deputized to apprehend bag limit violators, Waters said.

Shelby Girls, Charity Workers

SHELBY — The Epworth league of First Methodist church will have a booth Wednesday night, Nov. 8, at the annual booth festival of the Richland County Epworth leagues at First Methodist church in Mansfield.

The arrangements for the Shelby booth are in charge of the Misses Marjorie Knapp, chairman; Miss Eloise Walker, Miss Lois Walker and Miss Eileen Corwin. These girls are the third department committee of the Epworth league of First Methodist church that is planning the Shelby booth.

A program of orchestra and vocal music will be presented in the auditorium at 8:30 p. m. under the direction of Miss Gladys Ahn-holt, music supervisor.

The program will include "Blue Danube Waltz" and "Slovakian Dance" by the school orchestra; "Bells of St. Mary's" and "Cornfield Melodies" by the boys' glee club, "I Dream of Jeanie" and "Indian Love Call" by the girls' glee club, "April Showers" by the 7th and 8th grade chorus, and "Marianna" by a mixed chorus.

DIET GUILT PUT ON PRAIRIE DOG

Animal's Vegetarianism Major Source of Anxiety on Western Plains.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The vegetarianism of the prairie dog has become a major source of anxiety to experts of the bureau of biological survey engaged in a conservation program for the grazing states of the western great plains.

Recent surveys by the bureau have disclosed that more than 97 per cent of the prairie dog's food consists of vegetation and that 78 per cent of the total comprises plants of forage and crop value.

The small quantity of animal matter consumed (2.53 per cent) consists largely of cutworms and grasshoppers.

The chubby little rodents that range from the Canadian border to Mexico, are clammy animals and usually live in large colonies popularly called "towns." Such a "town" can seriously deplete supplies of forage intended for sheep and cattle.

Grasses and salt bushes predominate in the prairie dog's diet, forming 45 per cent and 25 per cent, respectively, of the total quantity of foods eaten. Of the grasses, wheatgrass and fescue are the most popular, while saltbush and Russian thistle head the list of the goosefoot (saltbush) plants.

The remainder of the food consumed by the rodent, the bureau adds, is of little or no forage value and includes such plants as the locoweed and the nightshade, which are poisonous to cattle. However, this service is not considered sufficient to compensate for the damage done to other vegetation.

During the past year the survey's division of predatory and rodent control treated 2,139,000 acres of cultivated and range land infested with prairie dogs.

Dies Asks G-Men to Find Alleged U. S. Soviet Agent

WITNESS CALLS MAN 'POWER' IN COAST UNIONS

Chairman Says Administration Will Try to Block Plan to Continue Probe.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the House committee on Un-Americanism asked the justice department today to help get testimony from George Mink, described by a committee witness as a Soviet secret police agent in this country.

William McCuiston, self styled former communist and a former leader of the CIO's National Maritime union, told the committee recently that Mink could give orders to Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, and that he was the "power behind the scenes" in maritime work on the west coast.

McCuiston, who was taken into police custody Tuesday in connection with a New Orleans slaying, said he believed Mink was now on the west coast.

Dies directed Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, to confer with the justice department on prospects of getting a subpoena for Mink.

Before testimony started today, Dies predicted that the administration would "do everything" it could to block his request for a two-year extension of the committee inquiry. He added that, on a record vote, not 10 members would vote against it.

Asks About Attack

Referring to McCuiston's complaint to the justice department that he had been threatened and beaten for turning against communism in the maritime union, Dies asked whether he ever had been attacked in Port Arthur.

"They tried to dump me there but I came out about as well as they did," McCuiston replied.

Dies remarked that the maritime union had complained to the justice department that McCuiston was depriving it of its civil liberties and inquired how it was possible for one man to do that.

"If I was able to do that I'd be a small army," McCuiston said. He added that Joseph Curran, N.M.U. president and other leaders kept the membership "gagged" and that when the members obtained a vote they cried that their civil liberties had been violated.

In response to further questions by Dies, McCuiston said Curran had formerly been known as a non-union man and, that he had heard that he led an unauthorized sit-down strike at Los Angeles.

Band Uniform Fund Goes Up As Legion Votes $200 Gift

The fund for new uniforms for the Senior High school band, which had been $200 today as a result of a gift from the American Legion, Band members and their mothers also have raised $147.

The Legion voted the gift at its meeting last night at McVey post room. Commander R. M. James said he hoped it would stimulate other organizations in the city to give what they could to the fund.

The post also unanimously approved the stand which the state Legion has taken against the Bigelow pension and initiative amendments and passed a resolution endorsing the action of the Post's executive committee in a similar stand.

State Commander R. B. Gardner, who attended the meeting, said he had received letters from all parts of the United States commending the Legion for its fight against the Bigelow plans.

Richard Fench, representative of the Richland County Emergency committee, talked against the two Bigelow proposals which come before voters next Tuesday.

V. E. "Sam" Vining, who was a guest speaker, entertained the group with his wit and philosophy, telling a number of human interest stories to demonstrate his point.

SENDS OUT REST OF TAX FUNDS

Auditor Distributes $300,000 to County Sub-Divisions in Final Settlement.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe prepared today to distribute more than $300,000 to Mansfield and other county sub-divisions in the final real estate tax settlement of the year.

The allocation of tax money will actually amount to $585,696 for the last half of the year, but subdivisions that were hard-pressed for funds have already drawn approximately $250,000 in advances, the auditor said. Checks for the balance will be mailed in a few days.

Schools throughout the county will receive the largest share of the tax funds, their portion totaling $293,045. Mansfield schools have drawn all except $7,000 of the $173,000 due them.

The county will get $101,208. Mansfield will receive $107,171, the townships, $38,986, and Shelby, $13,654.

Madison township will get $18,798 in the allocation, but that amount will include $9,465 in inheritance tax from the estate of the late Frank B. Black, founder of the Ohio Brass company, who died two years ago.

OPIE READ DIES

Last of Pioneer Line of Literary Figures Stricken.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Opie Read, last of a pioneer American literary line that included Mark Twain, Eugene Field and James Whitcomb Riley, died today of infirmities induced by September's extreme heat. He would have been 87 years old Dec. 22.

The genial wit, novelist and raconteur died in the south side home of Mrs. Belle King, widow of a devoted friend of yore, where for many years celebrities and obscure persons fraternized at open house celebrations on Read's birthday anniversaries.

Read was founder of the Arkansas Traveler, humorous paper, author of 52 books and coiner of epigrams unnumbered, and even in his advancing years had few peers as a teller of stories.

Ballots of Sick and Absentees Must Be Cast by 6:30 P. M.

Mansfielders who will be unable to go to the polls here election day must vote by the absentee method by 6:30 p. m. today or not at all.

No sick or absentee ballots will be issued by the election board after that time, but ballots may be returned by mail until noon tomorrow under the state law.

The election board had issued 203 of the sick and absentee ballots to voters today, but indications were that the total absentee vote in the city might be lighter than it was two years ago.

He'll Call Special Session If Education Board Wins.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker said today that if voters adopted a proposed constitutional amendment to create a state board of education, he would call a special session of the legislature to put the amendment into operation.

The proposal, to be voted on next Tuesday, would become effective Jan. 1. It would be necessary for the legislature to specify the board's make-up and prescribe its duties. The board would appoint the director of education, now an appointive of the governor.

The governor said he did not know how soon the special session would be called or whether it would be opened to other subjects, such as poor relief.

Bricker also said he did not contemplate at the present calling a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Chester Bolton, Republican, of the 2nd district. "It would be very costly," he remarked.

KILLED IN BUGGY

CANTON, O.—Funeral services were planned today for Sam Miller, 68, killed when the buggy he was driving was struck by an automobile. The woman driver of the automobile that struck the buggy was exonerated after a gun duel with police and escaped in the others' automobile after wounding the marshal.

KALBFLEISCH SCORNS 'ALIIB' CHARGE, REPLIES TO OPPONENT

The municipal judge race provided the only fireworks again last night as Republicans took their municipal campaign into the Democratic Fifth ward with a rally at the Newman school.

While two of the major G. O. P. candidates said they had no intention of attacking the Democrats, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch replied sharply to his opponent, Atty. George Blocker, who had accused him of alibiing.

"I have never said a word in defense of my record in this campaign," Judge Kalbfleisch asserted.

"I can't be on the defense because there has been no attack on my record. When my opponent said I was alibiing, he merely conceived that in his mind as political strategy."

"I claim credit for a policy I instituted in court, but that has nothing to do with what my opponent has said. As an incident to that policy, suspended sentences have been on the increase, and I can justify that increase."

"All along I have told about my policy of suspending sentences in traffic cases so as to help the innocent victims of drunk and reckless drivers to collect damages when their cars were wrecked or damaged."

"In four years I have been in office, 823 traffic cases have come into my court. In 91 per cent of those cases the defendants were fined and paid their fines. In 9 per cent of the cases fines were suspended, and in 74 of the 90 cases of suspended fines, the suspension was ordered on the condition that the defendant pay for the damage to another car that he ran into," Judge Kalbfleisch said.

In brief talks, William J. Locke, candidate for mayor, and Atty. Lyndon H. Beam, candidate for city solicitor, told the audience of about 90 persons that they will continue to confine their talks to their own qualifications for office rather than attack their opponents.

"I don't feel like starting a scrap, because I expect to keep on living here whether I win or lose and I want to be on good terms with my opponent," Locke said. "I doubt if we gain anything by even answering insinuations of our opponents."

Beam said "we should weigh our qualifications against those of the Democratic candidates. If I have to call my opponent names he doesn't deserve them. I don't want to be in politics."

Atty. John Catlett, presiding at the meeting, introduced eight other G. O. P. candidates for city and township offices, including Roy McCartney, candidate for council in the Fifth ward.

Republicans will mobilize their forces for a city-township rally at 7:30 p. m. today in the Senior high school auditorium. Principal speakers will be Mrs. Martha Taft of Cincinnati, wife of U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft, and State Senator D. A. Baumhart of Vermilion.

Atty. Stuart H. Cramer, campaign chairman, will preside, introducing the municipal candidates. Locke and Judge Kalbfleisch will speak briefly.

Democrats to Rally In Sixth Ward Tonight.

After a day of rest, Democratic candidates will swing back into the municipal campaign tonight when Sixth ward Democrats stage a rally at 8 p. m. at Hedges school.

Principal speakers at the meeting will be Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Atty. A. S. Beach. Tomorrow night the Young Democratic club will hold a meeting at 7:30 p. m. at Prospect park and at the same time colored voters will rally at 211½ North Diamond street under the auspices of the Richland County Colored Democratic club.

POSSE HUNTS BANK BANDITS

Miscount Town Has First Hot-Up Since Jesse James Days.

GLAUE, Mo.—(AP)—A 60-man posse combed the timbered hills country near this village today for two bandits who yesterday staged the first bank robbery in historic Ste. Genevieve, 35 miles northwest, since Jesse James raided the community in 1873.

Forty troopers, sheriffs of five counties, FBI men and city police sought the pair somewhere in the hills near where they deserted their bullet-riddled car last night.

The bandits, who fled with about $1,200 taken at the Rozer bank, wrecked their car eight miles west of the city, fought a gun duel with police and escaped in the others' automobile after wounding the marshal.

HOUSE TO VOTE TODAY ON ARMS EMBARGO PLAN

Senate Amended Bill to Face Test This Afternoon; See Adjournment Saturday.

change the bill as passed by the senate, but will instruct conferees representing the house what changes to seek in conference with the senate. If the house conferees are not instructed to oppose repeal of the embargo quick agreement on the senate bill is likely.

The embargo issue will be presented to the house in two forms today:

1. In a motion by Rep. James A. Shanley (D., Conn.) to retain the embargo, banning export of "arms, ammunition and implements of war," including poison gas, torpedoes, tanks and bombs.

2. In an amendment by Rep. John M. Vorys (R., O.) to ban export of "arms and ammunition."

The difference between the two lies in the fact that under Vorys' proposed embargo the United States might export commercial airplanes which would be barred under Shanley's.

A third amendment is pending. Sponsored by Rep. Jesse P. Wadsworth (R., Mich.) it would specifically prohibit the federal reserve banks, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Export-Import bank, the Commodity Credit corporation, or any other government agency from lending money to belligerent nations.

Ohio Votes Key to House Embargo Stand.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Ohio's votes might mean the difference between victory or defeat in the house for administration forces seeking passage of the senate neutrality bill which would repeal the embargo on arms shipments.

With indications that the margin either way would be extremely close, a new survey of sentiment among Buckeye representatives showed today an overwhelming majority opposed to the removal of the embargo.

Here is the line-up among the 23 Ohioans prior to a house vote on a proposal to insert the embargo section in the senate bill:

Against repeal of the embargo, 17: for repeal, 3; uncertain, 3.

The three for removal of the embargo sections are Representatives Kirwan, Harter and Claypool. Democrats, who opposed the Vorys embargo amendment several months ago.

Those who declined to commit themselves are Marshall, Republican, and Polk and Crosser, Democrats. It was recalled, however, that they supported the Vorys amendment.

The 17 against repeal are Ashbrook, Hunter, Sweetney, and Sechrist, Democrats; and Bender, Elston, Hess, Lewis, Vorys, Sacramento, Rountzohn, White, Smith, Brown, Jenkins, Jones and Clevenger, Republicans.

ENTER PLEAS

Defendants Indicted by Jury to Be Arraigned Saturday.

Defendants indicted yesterday by the county grand jury will enter their pleas before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court at 9 a. m. Saturday, C. A. McKinley, court assignment clerk, said today.

Twelve of the 14 persons indicted openly are already in the county jail while the other two are free under bond.

No one had been arrested today on the 23 secret indictments returned by the jury, but deputy sheriffs were to start rounding them up this afternoon.

There were several more secret indictments than defendants. Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said, because some of the defendants were cited both for non-support and abandonment.

'PALM' MUSEUM

Miami Plans Collection of Products of Trees.

MIAMI, Fla.—(UP)—Plans are being made here for construction of a museum to house a unique collection of products derived from palm trees.

The collection, being increased gradually, now is displayed in two rooms at the University of Miami. It includes old Buddhist books written and illuminated on leaves of the Borassus palm, carved drinking vessels and dishes, rope from palm fiber and other oddities.

One case contains cans of food products derived from palm trees. A large mat of palm fiber, soft and flexible as a wool blanket, and a group of poisoned arrows and spears whose shafts are made of palm fronds were obtained for the collection in Samoa.

Pictures of palms in their native setting in many parts of the world adorn the walls of the two rooms. The pictures were donated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Men in 12 States, 46 Cities Report They

SAVE UP TO $1.48 A QUART

on Old Quaker Whiskey—Now 4 Years Old!

Former Users of "Expensive" Whiskies Are Switching to Old Quaker! They've Learned to Buy Fine Whiskey, and Save Money!

● If you're a man who wants to save money and get fine whiskey too—here's some news.

Men who used to pay up to $1.48 more a quart for "expensive" brands, have learned how to buy a rich, delicious whiskey and save money doing it.

We wanted to know how this came about. Were these men buying Old Quaker just to save money? Or did Old Quaker's taste appeal to them still more? So investigators visited 12 states, 46 cities and asked:

Read these typical statements: "What," said Milo

Fender, Keithsburg, Ill., "me pay over $3.00 a quart for whiskey again? Not me, since I found Old Quaker saves me $1.30 or more on every quart, and is every bit as good."

"No more high-priced whiskeys for me," says Frank H. Scott of St. Louis, Mo. "Old Quaker tastes as good—a saving of $1.35 a bottle."

Try It Yourself!

Take a tip from these men. Try Old Quaker yourself. See how it can save you money.

"I used to drink high-priced whiskey," says John H. Vogel of Milwaukee, Wis. "Old Quaker saves me $1.37 on every bottle!"

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1939.

Good tools are essentials to good work—either in the shop or in government.

Those new Jefferson nickels are still so scarce that some folks wonder if they are real money.

Insofar as Ohio motorists of Route 30 are concerned, Admiral Byrd's snow cruiser can go to either of the places noted for temperature extremes.

To Remove Schools From Politics

FIRST on the "Questions or Issues" ballot, which voters will receive next Tuesday, will be the proposed constitutional amendment to create a state board of education and a director of education, and to abolish the present politically appointive office of superintendent of public instruction.

This appears to be a well-intentioned effort to divorce the state's public school system from the influence of partisan politics by setting up a state board of education, whose members would serve without compensation and who would appoint a director of education who would not be subject to removal at each political change of state administration, as is now the case.

The plan would be comparable to those now in vogue in several other states, including Massachusetts and New York, and has been endorsed by many parent-teacher organizations as well as by educational groups and others who have made a study of the proposed change.

The people of Ohio have been consistently favorable to removing their schools from the baneful influence of partisan politics and if the proposed amendment can be made to serve the purpose of progressing toward that accomplishment it merits the "Yes" vote that expresses approval.

Hope Seen for Refugees

BRITISH and French governments are said to be taking a more cheerful view of the refugee problem. Instead of the ten or twenty million persons recently expected to be homeless as a result of Europe's current wars, they believe far fewer will have to be settled in special colonies in regions remote from their native lands.

The reason for this revision of outlook is the Allies' expectation that they will win the war. When they have achieved their goal they hope to make an end of the persecution of individuals for race, religion or political views. They hope to return to their homes many of the people already scattered. The Allies plan to rebuild devastated regions as they rebuilt the war-ravaged areas of France and Belgium after 1918.

These views have been presented to President Roosevelt by Myron C. Taylor, former head of the United States Steel Corporation and now American vice chairman of the inter-governmental committee on political refugees. They sound like a partial answer to the repeated question asked of the Allied governments: "What are your war aims?"

This is encouraging, but does not meet the immediate needs of the many homeless and persecuted.

Tumult and Shouting

WILLIAM F. McDERMOTT, newspaper columnist, discussing a certain type of radio excitement or disease, observes:

"I have nothing but admiration for the mental nimbleness of the radio broadcasters who report the football games, and I understand the strain involved in the conditions under which they work. Still, some of them make me uneasy."

"I wish they would not report the passage of an inflated ball over a field in a tone and manner which suggest that they are witnessing the destruction of the world by fire, or the emergence of the sheeted dead from their graves in preparation for the last judgment. There is a doomsday note in their voices which I doubt that the occasion warrants."

The American public, used to noise, seems to tolerate this sort of thing. It would be regarded as a very strange procedure, though, in almost any foreign country. An American who listens to sport broadcasts in England, for example, is always impressed by their composure. The tone of many of our broadcasts must astonish Europeans and Latin-Americans.

Still more, perhaps, are they astonished by the excitement, stress and strain that our broadcasters usually put into reading the advertisements sandwiched in between news and entertainment programs. This is a form of bad manners which Americans themselves often resent.

Both World Fairs Lose Money

WHETHER the Golden Gate International Exposition, held on Treasure Island, San Francisco, was a failure or a success appears to depend entirely on viewpoint.

Just closed, after 254 days of operation, the west coast exposition is classed as "an artistic triumph but a financial flop."

Decision as to whether it is to be carried through another summer depends on whether creditors prefer to accept a loss of above four million dollars or take a chance on another season paying out.

Two world fairs in one season seems to be more than even such a prosperous country as this can adequately support, as New York's World of Tomorrow also is winding up in the red.

Experience as a Teacher

EXPERIENCE has long been recognized as a good teacher—but sometimes rather expensive. Some people are careless about their fire insurance coverage, for instance. Following a recent destructive fire in a newspaper plant in a mid-western city the publisher had better realization of the importance of inventory and appraisal service. In an editorial, based on his own experience, he listed as "some of the things everyone should do":

First: Have an inventory of your properties made. Be ready to prove your claim.

Second: Have an insurance company go over your inventory. See if you have enough insurance to cover your property. Don't have too much, but don't have too little.

Third: If you have numerous articles that are expensive to replace; that depreciate rapidly and that change periodically in value, have some qualified man appraise and inventory your property.

Fourth: Play fair with the insurance company adjusters. Tell them the true depreciated value of your property. They'll play fair with you.

Fifth: Carefully check your own expiration dates and protect yourself if your agent does not. This is important.

Sixth: Above all, go to a capable insurance man and have him map out your insurance program. If ever you have a loss you will find it pays big dividends to be properly protected. That's the agent's job—he knows more about it than you do.

Most thought-provoking of all was the editorial's last line, which said: "If it were not for insurance, we (the city's oldest business firm) could no longer continue in business."

India's Vast Patchwork Makes Stubborn Problem For Britain

Editor's Note: Those who have read Louis Bromfield's story, "The Rains Came," or who have seen the motion picture based on that story of India, will be particularly interested in the following informative article on the complex social and economic problems of that vast peninsula.

RESIGNATIONS threatened by the Indian congress in protest against Britain's proposals to consider India's Dominion status "after the European war" attracts attention to one of the world's most complex forms of government.

"Geographic, racial, religious, cultural and political forces combine in India to produce a vast patchwork of loosely woven and conflicting human relationships," points out a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"In 1935, India received from the British parliament a new constitution which was for the first time to throw a single mantle over the varied peoples of that crowded peninsula. The 11 provinces of British India, together with the Indian states, were eventually to be joined in a federation which would administer the common affairs of both."

"Two and a half years ago provincial autonomy in the British Provinces was initiated, to give some 270,000,000 people a measure of self government. The organization of the federal government is still uncertain, however, various parties being opposed to it. Moreover, before going into effect it will require the consent of the princes whose domains include at least half of the total Indian States' population. At present, with the European war intensifying the issue, the Indian congress (Nationalist party) is seeking a still greater degree of independence."

"India's very size and complex geographic nature make for lack of unity. With 6,000 miles of land frontier and 5,000 miles of sea-board, it has an area of more than 1,800,000 square miles. Within its boundaries are found the highest mountains, the greatest rainfall, some of the hottest spots on earth, and one of the world's most extensive plains, stretching more than 2,000 miles from the Arabian Sea to the Bay of Bengal."

"All India has a population of more than 350,000,000 people or roughly, between one-fifth and one-sixth of the entire human family. More than three-quarters of them live in British India."

"India's millions present all shades of social and economic variation, from fabulously rich Maharajahs to the poverty-stricken 'untouchables.' With the blood of many races in their veins, they speak more than 200 languages and dialects, and practice innumerable religions, some of them bitterly hostile to each other. India has a Moslem population of some 77,000,000—the largest in the world. Yet this huge group is only a fraction of the still vaster Hindu group which counts nearly 240,000,000 adherents."

"On a colored map India shows up graphically as a political patchwork of divisions and subdivisions. The two major divisions are British India, with its 11 provinces governed by representatives of the Crown, and the more than 560 Native States, ruled with varying degrees of power by princes subject to British influence. In addition there are certain Chief Commissioners' Provinces and 'Excluded Areas' considered not yet ready for the new constitution. Burma, under the terms of the 1935 Government of India Act, was separated from India."

"How complicated is the general governing machinery is evident from the fact that the act contains more than 200 pages. By comparison, the United States Constitution, as reproduced in the average textbook, covers less than 20 pages."

"No less far-flung are the economic problems of this vast segment of the human race. Primarily the home of an agricultural people, with more than 100,000,000 of them making their living by the land, including forestry and stock raising, India is also one of the growing industrial regions of the world."

"Although the percentage of workers is small compared with the number of farmers, in the aggregate the figure represents the big business of employing more than 15,000,000 persons, with an increasing proportion of women. Moreover, the total number of industrial workers is also steadily increasing. Despite the teachings of Mahatma Gandhi in favor of handicrafts and homework, recent reports indicate factory workers last year were at the highest level in history, especially in the cotton textile and jute industries."

"As a producer of manufactured articles, India has been rated eighth among the industrial states of the world. Production of pig iron has increased from 300,000 tons in 1920 to 1,668,000 tons in 1937. Steel rose from 113,000 tons to nearly a million tons."

"Chief among the industries are cotton and silk weaving, shawl and carpet weaving, wood carving and metal work. The tea industry employs a daily average of $99,000 workers."

"India has important reserves of such varied minerals as coal, manganese, chromium, vanadium, salt, petroleum, silver, iron ore, and precious stones. Recently the Geological, Mining and Metallurgical Society of India was reported as recommending a national steel, power and engineering-machinery industry."

"As Good as a Play." We do not go in for royalty; but democratically recognizing a good line though it fall from the lips of a king, we do not hesitate to adopt the royal phrase and make it go native.

Fertile to this propensity is the expression "Good as a play," alleged to have been first uttered by King Charles II of England in Parliament, while listening to the arguments on Lord Ross's Divorce Bill.

That both the words as well as the incident may not be precisely accurate is inferable from Macaulay's statement in his Review of the Life and Writings of Sir William Temple:

War Orders.

The flood of foreign war orders that had been looked for in some quarters has not materialized thus far. It is not clear that it will do so if the war continues at its present pace. But even should the totalization war become a reality, it is far from certain that the torrent of foreign buying that characterized 1915 and 1916 will be repeated.

On both sides there has been a pronounced tendency to count the ultimate costs and to conserve resources that are by no means inexhaustible. The price that was and is still being exacted for the struggle of 1914-18 has impressed its lesson on all belligerents. The British slogan of 25 years ago, "business as usual," is no longer in good standing. Instead, the democracies have promptly followed in the steps of Germany in rigorously cutting down civilian expenditures from the outset in order to release financial, industrial and human resources and divert them to war needs.—New York Times.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Ed Barrow was saying the other day baseball lost a good man when Zane Grey gave up the game to become the most widely-read novelist in America.

That was after the word came through that the man who wrote "Riders of the Purple Sage" had passed away on the Pacific Coast.

Ed Barrow is business manager of the four-time-in-a-row world champion New York Yankees, and as he remembered Grey, he could run, he could hit, and he had a good arm. . . . "But his heart wasn't in it," Ed added, "he wanted to be a writer, and he left us after being with us only a month."

I suppose everybody has read at least one book by Zane Grey. He wrote 50. Some of them were about baseball, and were for boys. Most of them were about the west—the purple sage, the painted desert, the panhandle. . . . Only this week his last novel reached publication—Western Union—the story of a piece of wire from the east meeting, at last, a piece of wire from the west. It is the hard-shooting, fast-riding sort of narrative that made the west what it was, and the way it will always be remembered.

YOU never heard much about Zane Grey's private life, unless you saw his picture, or an article by him in the hunting and fishing magazines. He was a fisherman—a deep water fisherman. He had camps set up in all the remote corners of the world. . . . Probably he obtained the greatest fun catching the deep-running killer sharks, which infest the waters off Australia. He still holds. I think, the world's record for shark. He has caught bigger fish, and more of them than any man alive. Many of his adventures which were narrated in books, were superb reporting. A page out of his fishing travels and you could smell the salt sea so sharply that your nose stung.

I think in his later years, that he was more purely a student of nature than he was a hunter or fisherman. He was never a killer. If he hadn't been a wonderfully successful writer, he couldn't have helped becoming a poet, or a painter. Sunsets splashed against the rocky sides of far mountains meant too much to him. The stillness of a quiet mountain pool was to him the same infinity of wondering beauty that Coleridge had in mind when he wrote, "as silent as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

I SAW Zane Grey just once. It was 20 years ago. It was in a dining car on the Southern Pacific between New Orleans and Lake Charles, La. He was in his forties then. And already he was famous. His novels had sold by the tens of thousands. I sat and stared at him until he completed his dinner and, with friends, disappeared into another car. I was then 16, and on my first long trip away from home. But I had cut my teeth on Zane Grey, and at that moment I could probably quote more of those books than he could.

Zane Grey says he found the road to success a rocky one. He nearly starved. At one point in his career his spirits were so low that he almost gave up the idea of writing, but his wife made him stick it out. Time after time he sent off his novels to the publishers—and they always came back. . . . The Greys were nearly starving. But then one day he hit. The name of his book was "Betty Zane." It was a story of the Ohio valley in the old, wild days when there were drums along the Ohio. It sold over a million copies. They say today Zane Grey books have sold over 20 million copies. That if you ask me, is really pitching.

But Stalin's chief objective, according to diplomatic advice, will be Istanbul and European Turkey. This was his aim during the Turkish negotiations, which broke up two weeks ago because Russia wanted to place three divisions of the Red army on the Dardanelles.

Now Stalin's tactics are to reach the Dardanelles through Bulgaria and the Balkans. So in the end he may get what he wants—the age-old Russian demand for an outlet to the Mediterranean sea.

Note — Soviet Russia's ambitions are no different than the Czar's. The Czar penetrated Siberia with the Trans-Siberian railway to reach the sea at Vladivostok. Now Soviet Russia, still reaching for the sea, has ambitions in Norway, Finland and Turkey.

Away at College

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WAS passing a neighbor's yard. It was the first paper read in class, and I was excited. The paper shook so I could hardly see the lines, and my knees were so weak I couldn't stand straight. When I finished they all laughed, even the teacher. I hadn't tried to be funny.

"One bright student made some criticisms that hurt terribly. Among other things he called my piece 'barnyard philosophy.'"

"The next day, though, we had to give quotations by heart. I gave that one you taught me so long ago, about Creation, and do you know, I could see you standing right there before me."

I said it to you. It seemed so quiet, like no one was in the room, and the teacher said it was the best one given.

"Thanks for the three dollars. I had been borrowing a text to read after the others went to bed. Now I can get my own. The box of cats was wonderful. I shared it with a boy who is homesick. He seemed to feel better afterward."

"This morning, before daylight I heard a rooster crow just off the campus. He had a low, coarse voice, like old Sammy. I thought for one short moment I was home. Now don't work too hard. I am sure I will be able to get along without any more money at present."

"Your loving son."

"ELMER."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The sudden burst of speed now ending the neutrality battle is no accident.

Behind the abrupt shift in pace was a mounting restlessness among the politicians to get back to their political marbles. The rarefied atmosphere of nonpartisan statesmanship was too much for the boys. They wanted to get back to the familiar levels of domestic issues and electioneering.

This was true of both parties. The Republican national committee had worked out an elaborate anti-New Deal publicity drive for this fall, which had to be shelved when Roosevelt called the special session. GOP generalissimo have been chafing at the bit ever since, for the longer their program is held up the less effective it will be.

Also, they are worried about the upsurge in Roosevelt popularity as a result of his international policy.

In the Democratic camp, the foreign development cut squarely across Jack Garner's churning boom and the ambitious soundings taken by managers of Paul McNutt. Both were in the midst of peppy drives when Hitler pulled the trigger and pushed them off the front pages.

The Garner camp is all set to start rolling again as soon as neutrality is out of the way. His managers have quietly sent word to state lieutenants to swing into action as soon as they get the signal: while Frank McHale, bulky campaign maestro for McNutt, is all set to resume his delegate-hunting.

LEGACY OF LOVE + + + + +

CHAPTER XV.

"When I tell you I'm selling cars to get ahead in the world, you think I'm kidding. It's a wonder you don't say what you think—about finding the cigarette case in a bad spot—that you imagine the worst of me."

"The—the worst?" came from her scarcely above a whisper.

"Yes, do you?"

His voice was vibrant and manly and anxious, but something like fear clamped down on her senses again.

"No, no, Tom!" was wrung from her involuntarily. "I do—I do trust you!"

He said nothing for a long tense moment. She nearly imagined she could hear his heart beat.

Then he told her, "Darling—I love you more than ever. Please try to be patient. If you love me, you will do what I ask—never have cause to regret it. You'll probably have to testify in court if the police ever make an arrest that shooting you heard. It will mean a lot to me if you give the right answers—mean a lot to you, too. That is—if I'm lucky."

Lucky? The right answers? Her heart sank. A criminal would think himself lucky if he succeeded in deceiving the law, wouldn't he? Oh, Tom—Tom!

"But why—why should right answers about your affairs—mean anything to me?" Rita asked quickly.

He laughed negligently.

"You'll find out about that—in time. You'll see what it will mean to you, my dear," he told her, as if murder were not wrapped up in all this.

Was he trying to use her for his own ends? No, she couldn't think this. But yet . . .

She said testily, "I'll tell the truth—no matter how I'm coached. The truth never hurts—the innocent."

"Truth often damns the innocent, and you know it. But we won't go into that now. Later, when the whole thing comes to a head, I'll have to tell you what to say—or you might spoil everything."

"What if I already know what to say?" she insisted stubbornly.

"Have it your own way, sweetheart. Only wish me luck. I'm going away for a while—little business trip."

"Away? Where?"

"Oh, are you that interested? But honestly I don't know exactly where I'm going. All over more or less. Don't forget the man who loves you while he's gone."

"Tom—should you go—now?"

Rita cupped her ear close to the receiver to get every inflection of Tom's reply.

"Why not? I might even sell a few cars in out-of-the-way places." He laughed shortly. "Hold down the fort in my absence, darling. I'll give you a ring when I return—and I hope it will be soon."

She didn't like any of this. His going away—was he running from something? His carefree attitude was so out of keeping. Did it cover a real fear of being implicated in a crime? No, she couldn't, she wouldn't believe it of him—yet. But she couldn't shake off a certain solicitude for him. She refused to call it worry.

"I don't think you're doing the right thing, Tom—but I'll be glad to hear from you when you get back."

"You must certainly will!" he declared. But oddly, it did not sound like egotism.

"Now, good bye, dear—for a little while. Chun up! I'll be thinking of you—and loving you always."

"Good bye, Tom," came waveringly from her.

She slowly hung up the receiver, for some queer reason feeling more at peace with herself and the world in general than she had for some time. She concluded finally that she was being very foolish. It was love, making her see things through roseate glasses when, as a matter of fact, everything was all wrong.

However, the comforting power of Tom's love seemed to permeate her whole being, and continued to do so for many days to come. Had she been able to look into the future, she saw the doubts that would confront her, the baffling developments she was to meet, she would have felt differently. Mercifully, she was spared all this, and went about packing to go to Selia Brewster with a new song on her lips, and a bright new hope in her heart.

The Christmas season came with its poinsettias, and holly, and mistletoe, and brightly lighted trees; its gay parties, and the comings and goings of visitors from all over the world. Rita was pleasantly and luxuriously settled in the Brewster home in Beverly Hills, and enjoyed planning the lavish entertainment given by Selia, keeping straight her social and business appointments, and the general hubbub surrounding this woman, who, like Delores, must have continual excitement to feed upon or be utterly wretched.

Rita was daily becoming more and more of a problem, and Rita was unable to make him realize that she could never care enough about him to marry him. But he was so faithful to her, anticipating her every wish, and escorting her everywhere with such gentle attentiveness that it touched her heart, made her extremely fond of him.

Selia threw Rita with Roger whenever she could without being too conspicuous about it. Rita knew exactly how the land lay and, although her duties here were not too strenuous, she often wondered how she could stay on in this household and calmly continue along such delicate lines.

She had heard nothing from Tom Cleveland, and was inclined to be hurt and bothered. No one seemed to know where he was or what he was doing. It was as if he had been snuffed out by some unseen force, or was remaining out of sight until certain things blew over.

Other matters bothered Rita, too, her mother being paramount among them. After a few months of being married to her count, she wrote Rita that he was "terribly unresponsive," whatever she meant Rita hoped it didn't portend anything serious, because now that Seabreeze and the town house were sold, Delores would be in an awkward position if she lost the count together with the security of her fortune—that fortune she had so blithely thrown into a dowry.

So the months dragged on until it seemed that even the newspapers had forgotten that murder on the beach. Apparently, detectives had found no clue to the murderer. But the victim had long ago been identified as John Hanner, an eccentric old millionaire who had often dined in old clothes and strolled along the beach for relaxation. Now his relatives, although gladly accepting their legacies, thought it decent to appear interested in John's murderer, and were offering a reward of ten thousand dollars for a solution of the mystery.

On a sunny day in March, Selia Brewster, Rita and Roger went out to the Santa Anita race track with Count Waddington, Hank Bleekman and Donald Avery to see the count's horse Triumph run. The count drove his own car, a powerful light blue sedan, swinging it in and out of crowded lanes of motor vehicles as if it were some new-fangled Pegasus that had found its wings.

Rita was thankful when at last he parked and she could get away from the blaring radio and feel her two feet safely on the ground. Quickly now they walked to the huge, modernistic grandstand, fronted arrestingly by stately palms and hundreds of blue and white pansies around a playing fountain, and took their seats in the count's box. Here they faced the breath-taking design of more pansy beds, gayly blue and white against the green backdrop of the Sierra Madre mountains.

But this was only incidental to the glamour and excitement all around them. Horses were going to the post, and the cooker was drying the track with blast torches. Thousands of people were here to see Seabiscuit win. A roar of disappointment went up when it was announced that the great horse had hurt its leg and would not run. Then immediately other good entries were remembered, and the crowd became a dynamo of happiness again. Jockeys in gay-colored suits were easing their mounts into position, and the air was tense with expectancy.

Even Rita's spirits were unusually high. She had been awakened this morning by meadowlarks and mockingbirds outside her bedroom window. It was spring! Anything lovely could happen in spring. Romance? But she thought she was finished with that.

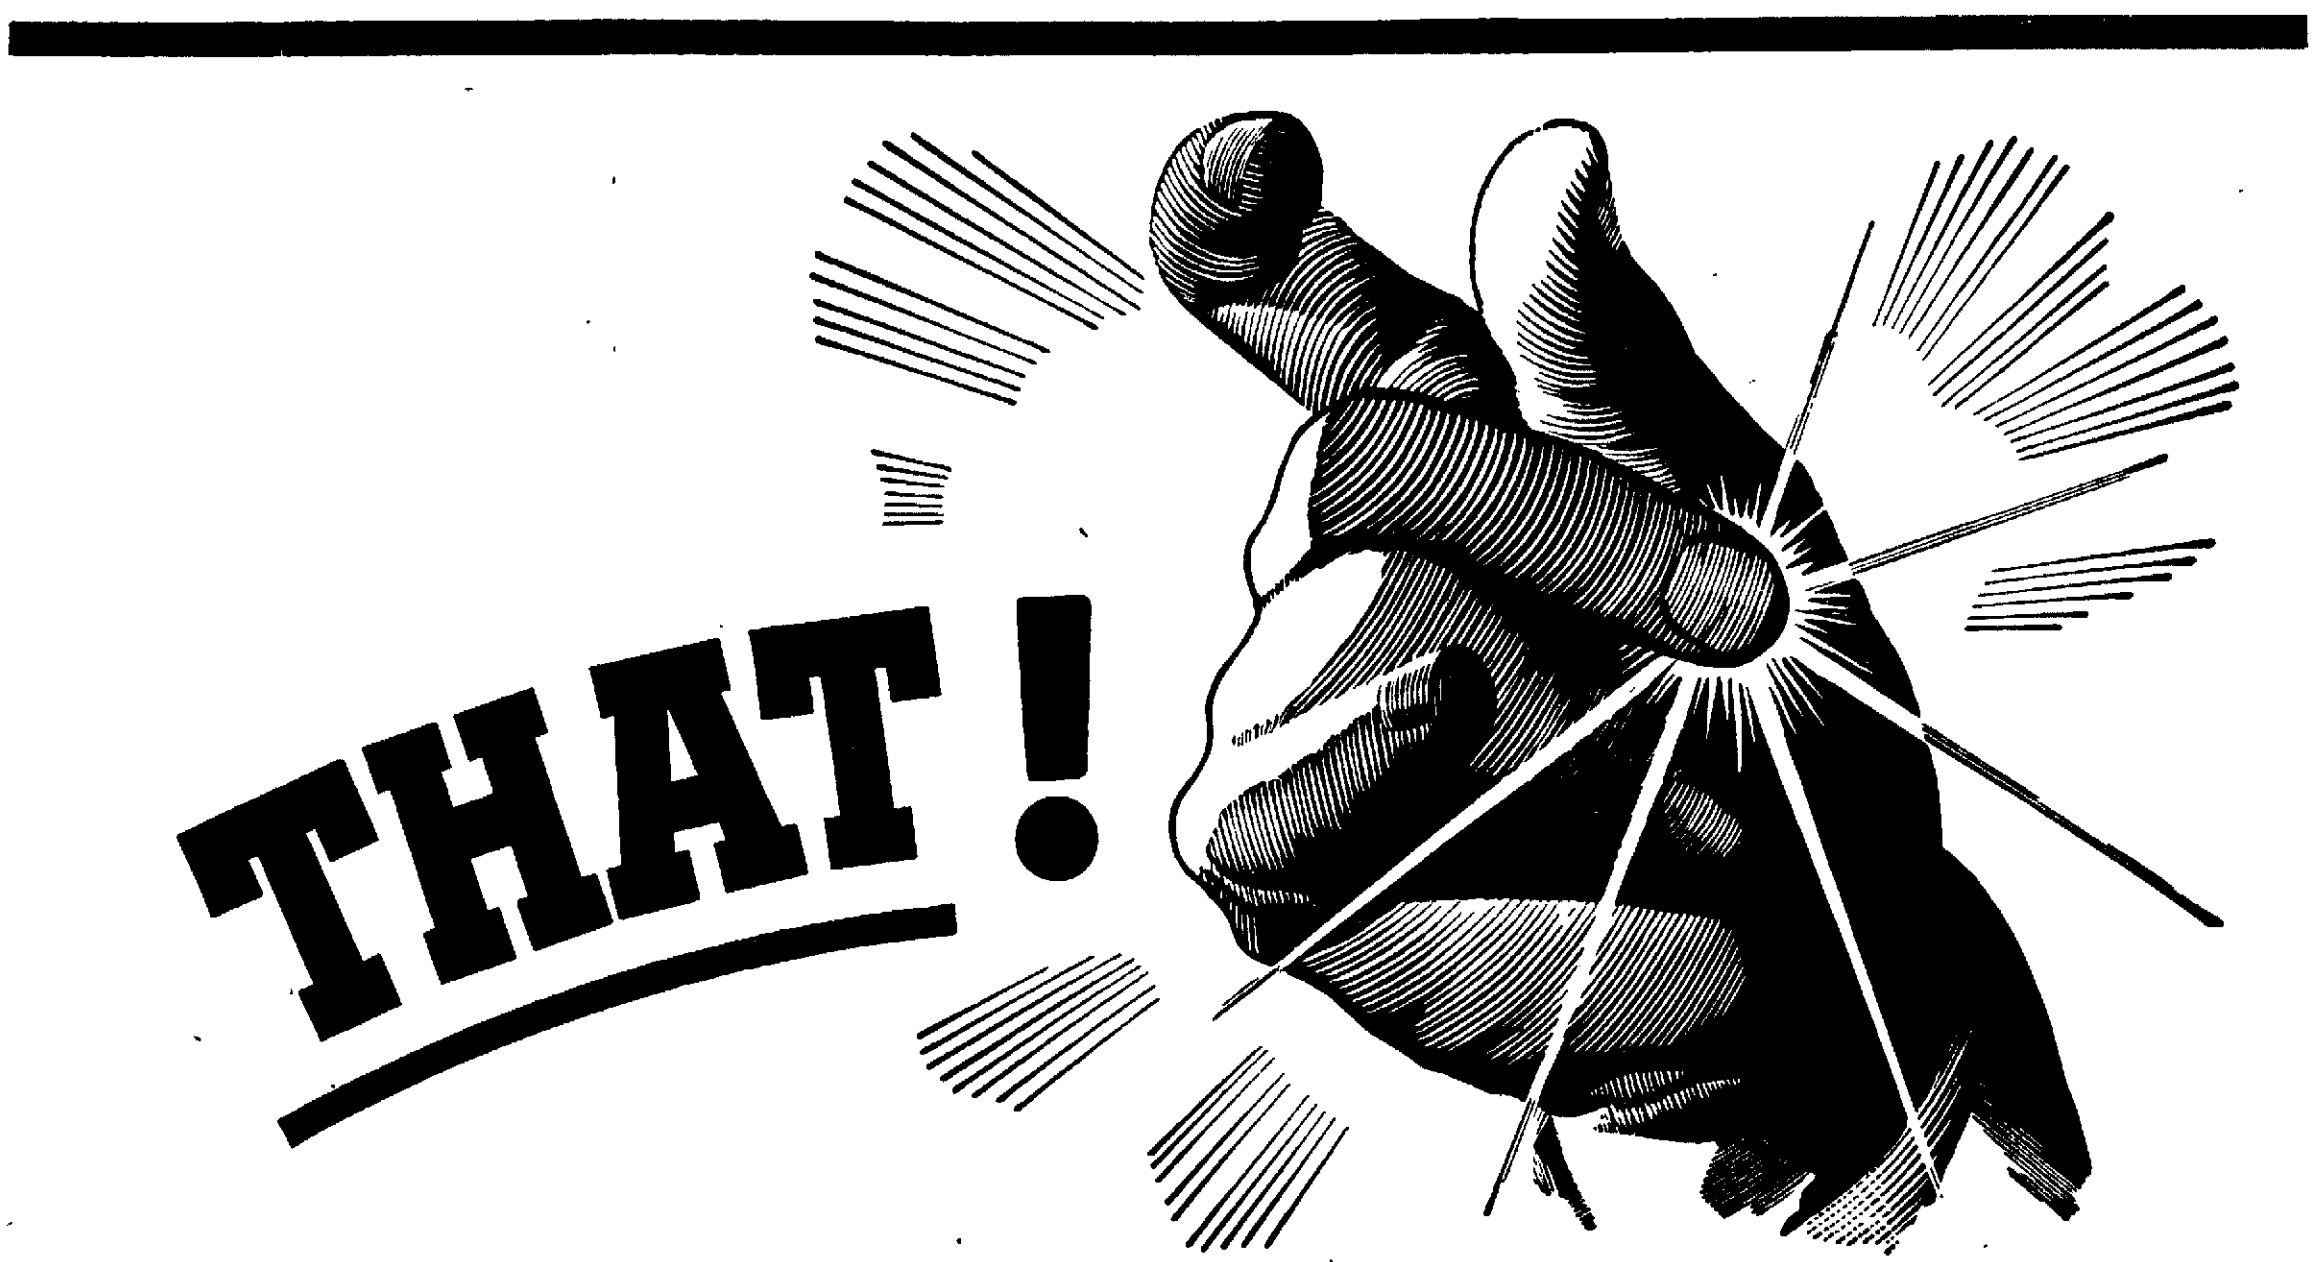

The darkly handsome count sitting beside her now fastened admiring eyes on her.

"We have lovely women aboard," he told her low, "but I've never seen a woman lovelier than you. Do you mind?"

She laughed up at him, the white forget-me-nots on the top of her blue sailor bobbing coquettishly, her even little teeth flashing in the sunlight. Her small chin, hidden in a great sable scarf remaining from more opulent days, was saucily defiant. She even felt a little like flirting with this devastating man all the girls were so crazy about.

"Mind? From you?" she flung back, invitingly, ignoring the scowling Roger sitting on her left.

THIS AND THAT: David Niven has gone back to England and his return to Hollywood depends on whether his country wants him. Niven was a soldier in the British army after the World war. But Hollywood thinks the government of Britain will send him back here—at least until the war gets hotter. Contrast—Joan Crawford wore a $40,000 chinchilla coat in "The Women" and the rest of her wardrobe for that picture ran into thousands. But for "Not So Narrow, Not So Deep" she will wear just one dress and it will cost $18.20. . . . M-G-M still receives 75 to 80 requests a week for Joan Harlow's picture. . . . Warner Brothers have decided against changing the ending of "We Are Not Alone" and it will remain a tragic one. Largely because the last line is a pipkin right now. Paul Muni and Jane Bryan are hanged for a crime they didn't commit, and in their final interview he says: "We are not alone—there are thousands dying on the battlefield today who are just as innocent as we."

"Kid Nightingale." John Payne, who not so long ago was in a male octet with Art and Lanehart, Mansfield singer, and who wedded Anne Shirley, shortly after going to Hollywood, is the title character in "Kid Nightingale," which will be shown at the Madison for Friday only. Payne has the role of a singer, who carries a lullaby in each powerful fist, and who has to be a prizefighter in order to win the opportunity to sing. Jane Wyman plays opposite him, with Walter Catlett and Edward Brophy adding comedy as the promoters.

Pageant of Beauties. Even the murders in "Fast and Furious" are overshadowed by the bathing beauty pageant which is staged with what is known as a bevy of pulchritudinous misses. Add to this an exceedingly crazy couple, a handful of mystery, a second love story, and you get an idea of the kind of entertainment to expect in this Franchot Tone-Ann Sothern comedy-drama at the Ohio. The picture will be retained through Friday, giving way on Saturday to the Marx Brothers in their new circus picture.

Mystery Theme. Latest mystery drama from the studios that have produced some of the greatest "shockers" is Universal's "House of Fear," which the majestic presents Friday and Saturday. Universal, you may recall, was the birthplace of the Lon Chaney pictures, "Dracula" and the "Frankenstein" series. William Garagen, Irene Hervey, Alan Dinehart, Walter Woolf King and El Brendel head the cast. Charles Starrett, popular Western star, in "Outpost of the Mounties," is also scheduled.

history when the English forces were warred upon by the French and Indians, as depicted in James Fenimore Cooper's classic, "The Last of The Mohicans," comes to the Park theater today. Randolph Scott plays the Colonial scout Hawkeye, and Henry Wilcoxon the English officer who is a rival of the scout's for lovely Alice Munro. Heather Angel is seen as Cora Munro who leaps off a cliff rather than become the squaw of Magua, played by Bruce Cabot. Tom Keene in "Raw Timber" is also shown.

Autry Turns Dairyman. Weary of barnstorming, Gene Autry and his Texas Troubadors, commission one of their members to buy a Colorado cattle ranch. The excitement starts when they learn that their cattle aren't steers but cows, and the boys are forced to sell milk. The action of "Colorado Sunset" centers around a milk war. Barbara Pepper, Smiley Burnette, Buster Crabbe and Robert Barrat are in the cast. Besides this Autry picture the Ritz is showing "Hell's Kitchen," with the Dead End Kids.

Lately, Bing has worried because his little mistress, Jean, the Forsyth's youngest daughter, spent more time with the daily comic strips than she did with him. So Bing—named for his crooning bark—did something about it. Each morning he piled the neighbors' morning papers on the Forsyth's porch for Jean to read. CARMEL, Cal.—(UP)—Mayor Herbert Heron, who does a little Shakespearean acting on the side, is credited with giving the "perfect answer" at a council meeting. One irate citizen protested vigorously that a U. S. army airplane had disturbed the peace of Carmel by flying too low. "What are you going to do about it?" he demanded. "Do about it?" the mayor echoed. "Why we'll put in an anti-aircraft battery, of course."

CRUISER LOOKS LIKE MONSTER

Giant Machine, Sprawled on Highway, Dwarfs Thousands Who Stare in Wonder.

It was parked along the highway, its giant headlights beaming into the inky darkness like beacons. The same lights that will brighten the Antarctic winter nights cast a beam across the countryside for a mile.

The vehicle which traveled 67 miles from Gomer yesterday, is an orange streamlined box car on pneumatic tires 10 feet high. It towered above the crowd that gazed in wonder at the control cabin 15 feet above their heads.

Accompanied by Rudd Lowry, one of the representatives attached to the cruiser during its journey to Boston, under the supervision of the Research Foundation of the Armour Institute of Technology, we fought our way through the crowd.

After inspection of credentials by no less than three state highway patrolmen, we were let inside the ropes that had been set up around the vehicle.

We were now to get a look at the "innards" of the monster.

Expecting to enter with lowered head, Lowry led the way through a "man-size" door and we stepped into the engine room just behind the front wheels.

Up a four-foot ladder and into the chart and control room.

Here we viewed the control panel from which Dr. Thomas E. Poulter, its designer and scientific director of the Armour laboratory, directs the movements of the vehicle.

Dr. Poulter, the man who was credited with saving the life of Admiral Byrd on his historic trek back to Little America on the second Byrd expedition several years ago, was not there. He had gone with three other members of the crew of six to a hotel in Bucyrus for some much needed rest. They had been on the road since 4 a. m.

Mass of Levers, Controls.
We crawled over a mass of levers and controls and into one of the two plush seats to look over the control panel. My first impression was that I was at a pipe organ. Besides the gadgets on the panel, levers were at both sides of me. The only place I could rest my feet was on a couple of the dozens of pedals which covered the floor.

Behind the seats was the chart room, the future resting place of the maps that will trace the geodesic finds revealed during the cruiser's proposed three-year stay at the south pole.

Downstairs again. Through a complete machine shop in the nose of the giant, past a lavatory with hot and cold running water, and through the engine room that houses two 150 horsepower motors that furnish only heat and light for this $150,000 mobile laboratory.

Each of the four wheels is operated independently of the others and is powered by its own 75 horsepower electric motor.

It was one of the diesel engines that was damaged when the cruiser slid into Pine run near Lima last week. It is to be replaced when the cruiser stops in Erie, Pa.

Chief Machinists mate Charles Meyer of the U. S. Navy whose job is to keep the machines shipshape, showed us through the galley and the photographic darkroom where pictures will be developed and printed. The kitchen of the latest modern design and one that any woman could be proud of.

On the door of the compact living quarters was a sign that said: "Maid, please have this room made up and in order by 7 o'clock."

In one of the large and comfortable bunks, of which there are four, we found Corp. Felix Ferranto of the U. S. Marine corps relaxing after his bumpy ride. He is the "ship's" radio operator.

He pointed to the three-inch insulated walls that separate the outside duratium cover explaining that he'd probably prefer to spend his time here during the Antarctic winter because he was just "shipped in" from Guam.

"There's to be an awful drop in temperature," he said, "from tropical heat to 85 degrees below."
At the rear of the vehicle is a large storage room where when food and other supplies for the $50,000 scientific laboratory will be stored. And in the tail of the huge monster there were two spare rims for the two extra tires which the cruiser will pick up in Akron today.

When the cruiser arrives in the Antarctic it will take on "piggy-back" a five passenger airplane, 2,500 gallons of diesel fuel oil and 1,000 gallons of gasoline for the sky-plane.

The cruiser, which can turn around in its own length, move sideways at a 25 degree angle or climb 37 per cent grades, has a cruising range of 5,000 miles.

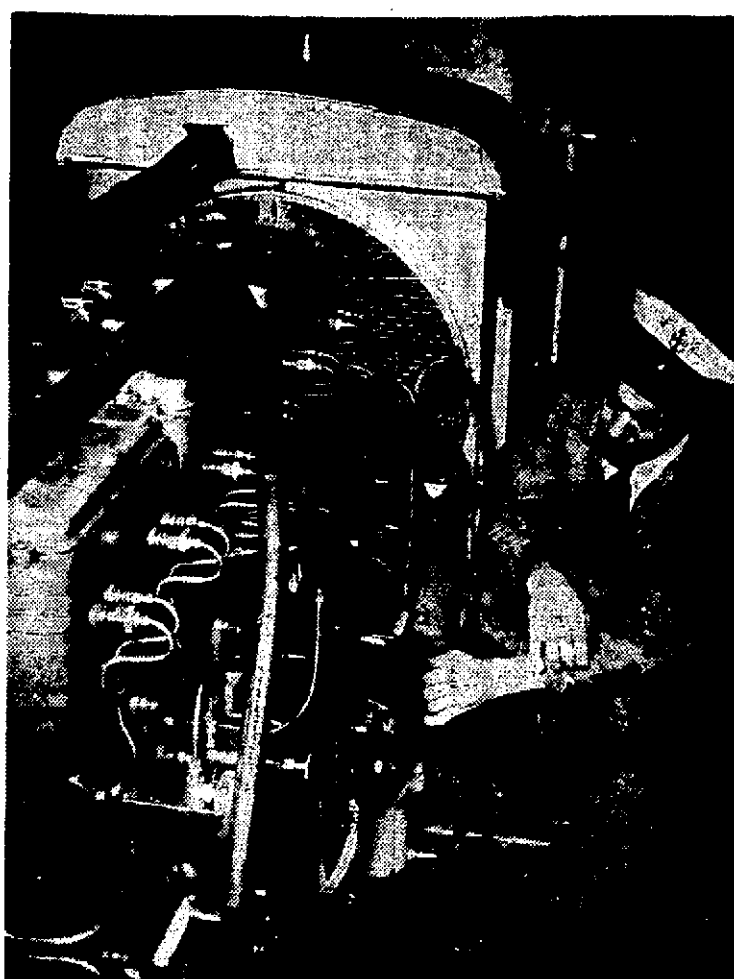

In the Antarctic it will carry a year's supply of food for a five-man crew of scientists and technicians. The plane is to be equipped as a laboratory and will carry special aerial cameras for photographing the unexplored areas.

DENIES PACT
THE HAGUE, The Netherlands —(AP)—Foreign reports of a possible Dutch-Belgian military alliance today were emphatically denied. Such an alliance, it was pointed out, would be contrary to the neutrality policy of both nations.

Relaxing In Cruiser's Bunk---One Of Engines

Corp. Felix Ferranto, U. S. Marine corps, the snow cruiser's radio operator, shown above, relaxes in one of the spacious bunks where he will spend the long nights during the Byrd expedition's three-year stay at the south pole. Below Chief Machinist's Mate Charles Meyer, U. S. Navy, looks over one of the Diesel engines that supplies the light and heat for the 37-ton giant. This is the engine that was damaged when the cruiser plunged into Pine run near Lima last week.

SAYS BERLIN DISAPPOINTED
LONDON —(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain, making his weekly war report to the House of Commons today declared Russian Premier Molotov's foreign policy speech had "occasioned some disappointment" in Berlin.

Chamberlain said he refused "to disturb myself over the flights of fancy in which Molotov indulged when describing the aims of the Allies."

(The Russian premier Tuesday accused the Allies of fighting Germany primarily to protect their colonial empires, and declared the restoration of Poland could not be considered.)

(He dealt at length on friendly relations with Germany, but made no mention of any aid other than economic and political to Berlin.)

Despite losses to British shipping since the war started the prime minister said "nothing has occurred to shake our confidence in our ability to overcome the submarine menace."

"We have continued to take toll of enemy submarines although 'a certain number' of British merchant ships have been lost, he declared.

Hollywood Beauty Accuses Hubby of Cruelty.

NEW YORK —(AP)—Arline Judge, once heralded by Hollywood as the "girl with the most beautiful figure in the world," has started a separation action against her socialite husband, Dan Topping, but Topping's attorney's today held out hope for a reconciliation.

Miss Judge charged that Topping, part owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers football team, had been "cruel and inhuman" during their two and a half years of marriage and had abandoned her.

She asked $35,000 annual alimony, custody of Daniel Topping, Jr., born in February, 1938, and $50,000 for attorney fees.

PLAYED BY DEMS

State Board of Education, Civil Service Acts Hit.

COLUMBUS —(AP)—Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach called upon Democratic voters today to vote against the proposed constitutional amendment for a state board of education and the new civil service act at Tuesday's election.

Limbach said the proposal to create a state school board with authority to name an education director would take control of schools out of the hands of local communities and would put the board "under Republican control for the next 15 years."

Limbach said approval of the new civil service act by the voters would "nullify the recent supreme court decision assuring protection for provisional civil service employees."

13 FLEE FROM ILLINOIS SCHOOL

ST. CHARLES, Ill. —(AP)—State police, acting in concert with squads of local deputies and authorities of all nearby towns, today pushed a vigorous search for a gang of young toughs who overpowered an attendant and fled last night from the St. Charles school for boys.

Thirteen youths participated in the break. Early today none had been recaptured. The wholesaler raised to 76 the number of St. Charles inmates who have been in the institution this year. Ages of the fugitives ranged from 17 to 20 years.

'Safety Belt' Around Americas Flayed by Landon

PLAN SEEN AS FULL OF PERIL TO U. S. PEACE

New Deal Attacked in Speech
After British Ship's SOS
Brings First Test.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Denunciation of the Panama declaration as a "peril to our neutral position" coincided today with search of the north Atlantic for a British freighter possibly attacked in direct violation of western hemisphere prohibition of naval warfare off these shores.

The freighter was the Coulmore whose SOS sounded about 100 miles inside the Panama declaration safety belt.

The Canadian Camperdown radio station advised the coast guard today that the Coulmore was safe. The message did not say whether the Coulmore had been attacked or not and officials withheld comment on implications involving the Lina declaration until that fact had been ascertained.

Former Gov. Alf M. Landon assailed the declaration last night in an address at Shenandoah, Iowa. It was a general attack on the New Deal. But coincidence of the Coulmore's difficulties centered attention on that part of his address.

Expect Senate Debate.
Questions raised by him and by evidence that the declaration has been violated in spectacular fashion, also are expected to strike fire in senate debate. The Coulmore's SOS may confront the administration with difficult decision whether to seek to make the safety belt policy stick by force or persuasion, or abandon it.

Landon said the administration should not have adopted the Panama declaration policy and would not be able to enforce it. It sought to ring the western hemisphere with a circle extending in some cases hundreds of miles to sea within which belligerent acts would be forbidden. British, French and German spokesmen already have indicated they would pay little if any attention to it.

"It sets up a hazy new zone on the high seas," he said, "within which we would be supposed to enforce a streamlined and dramatic kind of neutrality. We know that it raises many questions full of peril to our neutral position."

Wanted To Be Spy
'For Fun,' Woman
Gets Prison Term

GENEVA—(U.P.)—Virginia Capa, pretty divorcee who said she served as a spy "just for the fun of it," was sentenced to five years in prison today by the Swiss federal court.

The court accepted charges of military espionage against Miss Capa and Roger Jool, a draftsman, who was accused of sending the girl across the frontier with specifications of Swiss anti-aircraft guns and other defense measures.

Joel was sentenced to three years in prison, was deprived of his civil rights and excluded from the army.

Paul Rochat, a private detective tried with Miss Capa and Joel, was found guilty of maintaining a political espionage service in Switzerland for a foreign power. He was sentenced to 15 months in prison and deprived of his civil rights for two years.

Bare Plan to Merge 'Little Steel' Firms

Up and Down THE STREET

A 225-pound man probably can't sit behind a grade school pupil's desk and be comfortable, but some of them have been trying it in the municipal campaign. Two of the Republican meetings in the past week have been held in classrooms in school buildings because no other meeting places were available, and some of the husky campaigners have had a little trouble getting in and out of the seats. Yet they line up at the desks like schoolboys studying their arithmetic, apparently accepting it as a part of political campaigning.

This is apple blossom time in Richland county. Proof was provided by W. B. Square of Shelby, who brought several branches of blossoms to the city this week. Square found the blossoms on a tree along the Big Four railroad tracks near Shelby.

The 18 Mansfield veterans of the Rainbow division (and their friends) are holding their annual Reliance dance Saturday night at the American Legion ballroom, and only the veterans know the significance of the title. It was on Nov. 4, 1917, that the Rainbow division landed at St. Nazaire—in a drenching rain. The handful of Mansfield veterans are "reliving" Saturday night, exactly 22 years after their landing in France.

"Where's the snow crusader?" That's a sample of the names given to Admiral Byrd's 37-ton snow cruiser by the curious people—600 of them—who telephoned the Mansfield substation of the state highway patrol yesterday. Corp. C. L. Strayer said the number of calls set an all-time record. In addition, scores of persons came to the substation personally to make inquiries.

NEW TALENT

Eight to Make Debut in First Community Play.

New talent in acting and technical work will be included in the Community Players first presentation of the season, "The Night of Jan. 16" next month. There will be eight new players and a new scenic artist.

Announcement was made last night at the meeting of the board of governors, held at the home of Mrs. John McCuen, Edgewood road, that Harold McCuen would design and build the scenery for the first play. McCuen is director of the Children's Theater, a branch of the Community Players.

New players will be Mrs. Jack Berno, who will play the leading role; Mrs. Mabel Ward, Don Miller, Louise Melisse, Miss Dorothea Grimes, Mrs. Ben Goodenough and LaVerne Gundry.

Announcement was also made that Laurence Todd, who has directed the Community Players' orchestra for the past several seasons, would do so again this year.

INDICT OHIOANS IN MAIL FRAUD

Government Pushes Probe of Cemetery Lot Sales After Court Victories.

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI—With new court and grand jury victories, the government pushed its probe of the alleged use of mails to defraud in connection with the sale of cemetery lots involving Ohio men here and in Ohio today.

Five Ohioans and 13 others, including Christian W. Beck of San Antonio, Tex., faced mail fraud indictments in Chicago in what U. S. District Attorney William J. Campbell said was a scheme promising investors they could triple their money in two years. Beck's operations, Campbell said, were based on lots owned by the Crown Hill Cemetery association of Twinburg, O.

Those indicted include Mike D. Gordon of Cleveland and Canton, O., sales manager of the First Commonwealth Trust; Mort Greenbaum of Cleveland; William Mendel and Barney Wolstein, both of Cleveland Heights and William Woodring of Lakewood, O.

Questioning of grand jurors concerning indictments they returned in a cemetery lot mail fraud case here, involving 53 persons, resulted in five men facing fines on contempt of court charges.

U. S. District Judge John H. Driffel, before whom the contempt hearing was conducted, ordered Attorney Milton H. Schmidt to pay $200 and assessed fines of $50 against Dr. J. Stewart Hagen, Stewart S. Cooper, Alfred LeFeber and Harvey E. Mau.

All prominent in political circles, the five were found guilty of contempt after affidavits were obtained from members of the grand jury saying certain indictments would not have been returned if they had been in possession of all the facts.

HURT IN BLAST AT ACTOR'S HOME

Handyman Injured When Heater Explodes in Devine's Cellar.
VAN NUYS, Calif.—(U.P.)—An explosion in Andy Devine's basement caused the gravel-voiced screen and radio comedian's many dogs to set up walls that broke the quiet and serenity of the San Fernando valley.

Devine's shouts didn't do much to calm matters. His handyman Paul Banks, 26, was injured seriously in the blast, caused by a gasoline-drenched blanket being ignited by a gas heater. Andy extinguished flames that caused minor damage. He's honorary mayor of Van Nuys.

SCHOOLS TO MARK THANKSGIVING NOV. 23 AS SCHEDULE'S REVISED

Pupils in Mansfield schools will get their Thanksgiving holiday on President Roosevelt's Nov. 23. Thanksgiving, the board of education decreed at a special meeting yesterday afternoon.

The board revised the school holiday up a week to comply with the President's request for an earlier Thanksgiving. Schools will be dismissed the Wednesday afternoon before Thanksgiving and classes will be resumed the following Monday morning.

Appointment of a substitute teacher for the deaf school was authorized by the board. The teacher has not been appointed.

The board authorized Clerk John H. Bristol to request bids on furnishing equipment for the cafeterias in the new Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson junior high school buildings which will be completed this winter.

Board members discussed the purchase of two bronze plaques to be placed in the new junior high buildings. The plaques will show that federal FWA funds helped to finance the construction and will list the names of present school officials and the date of completion of the buildings.

ELECTS BIGLER

Masonic Lodge No. 35 Chooses Officers for Year.

T. G. Bigler was elected worshipful master of Mansfield Lodge No. 35, F. & A. M., at a meeting at the Masonic temple last night. He succeeds D. R. Wolff.

Other officers chosen are H. J. Dotson, senior warden; D. M. Hedrick, junior warden; Howard G. Miller, treasurer; A. F. Porter, secretary; Roy R. Spetka, senior deacon; E. C. Brower, junior deacon; Earl M. Jones, tyler, and Val D. Wolff, trustee for a term of five years.

J. H. Finerock, A. F. Porter and W. H. Goodenough, were elected members of the Temple board; Earl E. Bates, Homer L. Dent and Robert N. Campbell, Mystic club directors; and Frank H. Marquis, John Weil and John H. Bristol, to the library board. Officers will be installed at a meeting Nov. 15.

PROBERS HEAR MOVE SPOILED BY DEPRESSION

Monopoly Committee Learns of Proposal to Form New Giant Corporation.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The monopoly committee delivered further into the iron ore and steel industry today after hearing that the early 30's business depression frustrated a proposal to merge a group of "little steel" companies into a giant corporation second only in size to the $2,000,000,000 U. S. Steel corporation.

E. B. Green, president of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, and Orispin Oglebay, president of Oglebay, Norton and company, both of Cleveland, said the companies expected to participate were Wheeling Steel corporation, Otis Steel corporation, Republic Steel corporation, Inland Steel company, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

The two presidents, both of whose companies are engaged in selling iron ore, said they had brought their competing companies together in hopes of playing a part in the consolidation that failed.

A. H. Feller, justice department attorney directing testimony, submitted a letter from files of the Cliffs Iron company which said the affiliation would help minimize "tendencies which have prevented iron ore producers from getting a fair price for their product."

Warns of Publicity.

The letter also warned that too much "publicity might result in opposition on the part of the public or the consumers to a move which they may construe as tending towards an undue control of prices."

Oglebay, referring to the proposed merger, said his firm wanted "to cooperate in this movement and thought Cleveland-Cliffs would play a large part."

He added that "we had more to gain by sitting around the table than sitting on the outside."

"The merger failed to take place and our two companies have acted as though there was no ownership of one in the other, and have operated independently," Greene declared, adding that the failure was "largely due to the depression."

Greene agreed with questioners that "formation of Republic Steel in 1930 was a step in the proposed merger" when it acquired "Central Alloy, Donner Coke, and Bourne-Fuller Steel."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Finds California Facing Vicious Scheme In Its New Pension Proposal

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—The incompetents, failures, half-wits and thieves, the ecclesiastical free-booters and body snatchers who rule the emotions of this city have got something at least in the issue known as ham-and-eggs, which goes to the voters of California on Nov. 7 in the form of an amendment to the state constitution.

This is a proposal to create an absolute dictatorship. It is the most audacious, the most absurd and, at the same time, the most horrifying suggestion ever presented to the voters of any American community since history runeth not to the contrary. Disguised as an old-age pension plan whereby all persons who are rising 50 years and who are, with variations, citizens of California, would receive $30 every Thursday, this incredible fraud is no pension plan at all but an invitation to the voters to elect either of two designated individuals to a position to be known as that of "administrator."

The promoters have had the effrontery to name, in a proposed constitutional amendment, two men, one of whom must be selected by the governor. These two individuals are Roy G. Owens and Will H. Kindig, both of Los Angeles, of whom more will be reported later.

It may be said in brief, however, that they are adventurers in emotional politics and neither, by previous achievement, would deserve better than alarm, even though they were running as nominee and alternate for the post of boxing commissioner.

This is the most astonishing proposal ever conceived in this or, for all my knowing on the subject, any other country, not excluding Germany or Russia.

After all, Hitler beat his way up and Stalin took over a slaughterhouse which was a going concern. But in California it is proposed that the people deliver the whole life, freedom and property of the state into the hands of either of two individuals who nominated themselves.

Huey Long was a prim and modest constitutional statesman by comparison, and let it be understood that it is the inconceivable gall of the two nominees and their crowd which has imposed on the confusion and want of southern California to place this amendment on the ballot.

The amendment itself runs up a score of about 1500 words, and would defy the intelligence of all the sages of all the ages, and yet, to the end, presents an appropriate but false promise to pay $30 every Thursday to everyone rising 50 ft backtracks, contradicts itself and the American constitution and gets lost in such fogs as even the most

KATHARINE HARTMAN SPEAKS BEFORE CLUB

Kenyon Student Also Talks at Afternoon Session; Paper on Current Events Given By Mrs. George Draffan.

GUEST SPEAKERS at the meeting of the Wednesday Study club yesterday were Miss Katharine Hartman, and Charles McKinley, student at Kenyon college, Gambier. Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, West Second street, was hostess. Miss Hartman told about her recent trip through the British Isles, and Europe, and Mr. McKinley told of his experiences on the Isle of Sark.

He explained that it is the only feudal state in the world, and it is governed by 40 landowners. The island, which lies in the English channel, is only three by one and one half miles in area. Miss Hartman told of her various experiences in European cities, and described the people and scenic beauties of the countries.

A paper on current events prepared by Mrs. John Bissman was read by Mrs. George Draffan. A social hour followed with Mrs. Louis J. Ott, president, pouring tea. Guests were Mrs. Louis Bromfield and Mrs. George Stephens. Mrs. Francis Barrett, honorary member, was also present.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 15 at the home of Mrs. David N. Roller, with Mrs. Louis Lamoreux and Mrs. Burton Preston in charge of the program.

Mrs. Treva Campbell, Mrs. Grace Downs and Mrs. George Cook will be hostesses for the Dec. 6 meeting, when the group will again sew. A regular evening meeting will be an event of Nov. 15.

Mrs. Frickman Talks On 'Child Hygiene'

Mrs. C. W. Frickman talked on "Child Hygiene," telling of contagious diseases, colds and children's diets yesterday at the meeting of the Woodville Mothers' club. Mrs. H. B. Conner opened the session with a devotional service. There were 33 present for the meeting which Mrs. R. L. Rice conducted.

Plans for a bake sale to be held Nov. 18 at the Third street market were announced by Mrs. Merle Boer, ways and means committee chairman. The next meeting was set for Dec. 6.

POSTPONE SESSION.

The meeting of the Dolly Madison club which was scheduled for Nov. 7 has been postponed until Nov. 14. Members will meet at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Mrs. Herman Homberger as hostess chairman.

SEW FOR HOSPITAL.

Twenty pieces were completed for the Mansfield General hospital yesterday when Mrs. Theodore Frank, Marion avenue, entertained 14 members of the E. L. K. Sewing Circle at a 1 o'clock luncheon. The next meeting will be held Nov. 15 at the Women's Club with Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus serving as hostess.

HOSTESS TO CLUB.

Rowena Davis, West Fifth street, was hostess recently to members of the Little Women's club and their guests. Prizes in contests were presented to Jerry Miller, Kathryn Linn and Jack Kennedy. Halloween appointments were used, and the guests were served refreshments.

DANCE TOMORROW.

Members, their wives, and guests of the Mystic club will dance tomorrow at the Masonic temple from 9 o'clock to midnight, officers announced today. Those in charge are D. A. McCullough, Earl E. Bates, A. F. Porter, R. N. Campbell, George Culler, H. L. Dent, C. A. Wolfarth, W. H. Barr, D. L. Divelbliss, and J. E. Snyder.

KEEP STOCKING COLOR longer with this new hard-water suds that contains no fading alkali.

Now see stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color, amazingly longer! See woolens and underwear regain bride-like freshness and color! Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle. Results are startling because science has found a way to make a wonderful new suds, called Vel. Contains no alkali to fade colors. Neither can Vel form ruinous soap-scum, even in hardest water. You can feel this slippery, slimy scum in soap suds. But these amazing new Vel suds feel soft and pure. That's because Vel is not a soap. It's a special new hard-water suds perfected by Colgate. It makes as much as 5 times more suds than expensive soap flakes in hardest water. And it makes hardest water act soft as rainwater. You can see why Vel is better than soap flakes for fine fabrics, because Vel does not form a ring of soap-scum around the bowl. That proves Vel can't leave ruinous soap-scum in your stockings, underwear and woolens, to dull the sheerness and cause a "cottony" look.

The most thrilling proof is the radiant freshness, the soft newness, and lovelier color of ANYTHING you wash in Vel. So easy on hands, too, because Vel suds contain no acid, no alkali to irritate the skin. Buy Vel today at grocers. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Pet Company.

Late Afternoon Ceremony Read For Mansfielders

Miss Edna Ruth Parkes, 286 West Third street, became the bride of Oliver A. Wharton yesterday in a quiet ceremony in the parsonage of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at 5 o'clock. Rev. Paul H. Saleste read the service. The bride was attired in a tailored brown suit with rust colored accessories for her wedding.

A dinner party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kagey on Robinson road immediately following the ceremony. The 12 guests were seated at a long table decorated with a red and white floral centerpiece and a wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal pair.

Pair Wedded Oct. 14 By Mifflin Official

Announcement was received today of the marriage, Oct. 14, of Miss Janet Shields and Carl Bowman. The couple was wedded by Justice of the Peace Harold Kazeebe, in Mifflin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Spicer, Wooster road. Mr. Bowman, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthen Bowman of Lucas, attended Madison township high school and is now employed at the Cement Products company.

Close friends of the couple learned of their marriage at a linen shower given by Mrs. Leo Mertz, 14 1/2 Distel avenue, one evening last week-end.

SEW WEDNESDAY.

Eleven members of the Welfare club sewed for the Red Cross and Mansfield General hospital yesterday afternoon when they met at the home of Mrs. J. D. Scott on Sycamore street. Mrs. George Riel will have the next meeting Dec. 6 at her home, 162 Gibson avenue.

MEET TOMORROW.

Mrs. Della Stull will entertain members of the Ladies' Bible class of the Mayflower Congregational church at her home, 445 Louise avenue, tomorrow evening.

3 EVENTS MARK SENIOR HIGH'S RED, WHITE DAY

Observance Opens Tomorrow Afternoon With Program; Parade, Dance at Night.

A parade, dance and variety program will feature the annual observance of Red and White day tomorrow at Senior high school.

The day's observance will open with a program in the auditorium at 1 p. m., followed by a parade at 3 p. m. through the downtown business section, and a dance at 9 p. m. in the school gymnasium.

Red and White day replaces the former "Alums Day" program at the school, and is the school's annual homecoming observance. The Mansfield-Ashland football game Saturday at Stadium Field concludes the observance.

The afternoon program will feature variety skits by the six classes and will be made up of vocal, instrumental numbers and dancing. Between each skit will be specialty numbers by various students. These acts will include Edna Wadell, vocal numbers; Louise Brightbill and Jean Schill, tap dancing; a boy's quartet comprised of Richard Wright, Clendon Parr, Robert Earley and Richard Miller and an instrumental trio.

Boost 3-Mill Levy. The parade in the evening is being staged by high school students to boost the three-mill school levy which Mansfielders will vote on at next week's election. There are to be six floats in the parade.

Headed by the American Legion drum and bugle corps, the parade also will include the Senior high school band and Girl's bugle and drum corps, and the John Simpson junior high school band. Both the Senior high and junior high school football squads will ride in the parade on trucks.

Forming on Sturges avenue, the parade will go in Park Avenue west to Main street, north on Main to West Fourth, west on Fourth to Walnut, south on Walnut to Park Avenue and west on Park Avenue to Sturges where it will disband.

The dance is scheduled to begin at 9 p. m. and is free to all high school students.

Arrangements for Red and White day are in charge of the school's public relations committee of which Zane Wilson is general chairman. Others are Miss Kathleen Mendenhall, Miss Beatrice McLees, Herman D. Bishop, Fred Elder, Harold C. Miller, Marjorie Boals, Gladys Kerr, William Harmony, Fred Lavender and Robert Boals.

270 Signed Up as 'Y' Renewal Drive Falls Short of Goal

Following the enrollment campaign by one week, the Y. M. C. A. drive for renewed memberships closed with a total of 270 re-signed members.

The figure is 30 short of the goal of 300, but added to the new members of the enrollment campaign boosts the total membership to 502, two over the goal set for the combined drives, Robert Remy, membership chairman, said.

Both drives ended on schedule and were the most successful ever conducted by the Y since the building was re-opened in 1931, Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary said.

The enrollment campaign was headed by D. O. Meese while Orlo Smith was chairman of the renewal drive. A report of both will be given by the membership committee at a meeting of the board of directors next Wednesday.

PAGEANT OF FOODS COOKING SCHOOL

With all the glamour, fun and excitement that go with a cooking school, a woman knows that the wonderful new recipes she receives will mean more to her than any other feature of the school. And well may she feel this way, for Pageant of Foods Cooking School recipes are among the most famous in the country. Collected by a large staff of expert cooks, each recipe must prove itself valuable by the most rigid standards before it is chosen. Is it practical? Does it call for ingredients found regularly on the supply shelf? Does it meet high requirements of flavor? (Note: Men are included among the taste-testers.) Does it serve attractively? How much time and work are required for its preparation? Can it be cooked in a utensil found in the average kitchen? These and many other questions must be answered favorably before the recipe is even considered.

And then for the variety! Meat dishes, cakes, pies, cookies, salads, desserts. Pageant of Foods is the only cooking school which features meat cookery, so recipes are included illustrating the correct and easy methods for broiling, roasting, braising (some call it pot-roasting!), and simmering in water (meat should NEVER be actually boiled!). A woman who attends all sessions and applies all she learns cannot help becoming a good meat cook!

Each day's printed Pageant of Foods Recipe Booklet contains more than a score of recipes which have been tested by the above high standards. Directions are simple and clear. Many of the recipes will be prepared before your eyes by the famous expert in charge of the school. Plan to attend every session so you will receive the full set of recipes and get the benefit of every lesson!

COPPER MINES OF UTAH WORK AROUND CLOCK

Full Blast Production Not Due to War, Either, Operators Contend.

SALT LAKE CITY—Miners in Utah's pits are working nights and days and converters in the smelters are turning out tons of strategically important copper daily, but officials of the leading companies insist the "full blast" production is not connected with European hostilities.

A. G. McKenzie, secretary of the Utah chapter of American Mining Congress, said operations throughout the mineral rich state are "about normal" because warring nations had accumulated large stocks of metals before fighting started.

"Prices in 1937 were raised to about 14 cents a pound for copper because of the European demand for the red metal which they are shooting over there now," McKenzie said. He added the present price of around 12 cents is actually sub-normal.

The mining authority warned that after the war there probably would be a severe setback.

No Assurance To Future.

"We can only surmise about the effects of this war from our knowledge of experiences in the last war," McKenzie said. "Then prices and production increased with a consequent following depression. Immediate profits were cut down by taxes and wasteful, costly production."

state since 1862, when rich deposits were discovered in Bingham Canyon in the Oquirrh mountains on the western rim of Salt Lake valley by Federal soldiers.

The Utah Copper company alone has produced nearly 5,000,000,000 pounds of copper since it started operations in 1904. Most spectacular of the Utah Copper company developments is the open pit at the head of Bingham Canyon, site of the famed ve-mile long, 5,000 population city that has only one street—that stretching along a deep, narrow gorge.

This pit has been dug into what once was the side of a large mountain but now is only a shell.

RECEIPTS CLIMB

October Muni Court Revenue Second Highest of Year.

Municipal court receipts totaling $2,675 in October were $600 more than the revenues in September, the monthly report of collections prepared by Miss Isabel Gerstmeier, deputy clerk, showed today.

The receipts were the second largest for any month this year. Collections in May were $2,810, the highest of the year.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $1,615, while $1,060 will be distributed to the state, county and the law library.

The city's share was derived from $1,112 collected as fines, costs and forfeitures in criminal cases and $502 collected as costs in civil suits.
